British Debt The Washington Post to-day says in editorial Mjustment comment upon the statement that the British Cabinet January 31 decided to accept the American terms for the funding of the British war debt: "The adjustment this debt is a matter of far-reaching importance, having a bearing upon peace of the world because of its steadying and encouraging effect. on the peoples see the two strongest financial powers of the world proding calmly to the adjustment and payment of such a colossal debt, the irit of unrest will be allayed to a great extent, and the rugged road ardworld tranquility will be appreciably smoothed. A restoration of condence in commercial matters will be an early manifestation of the benefits this adjustment. This confidence will permeate individual transactions, well as the transactions of governments, and from the increase of busiand commerce will spring prosperity."

ttle Import

A Lexington, Mont., dispetch to Commercial Seat for January 27 says: "Welter Hill is said to be importing a herd of purebred cattle from Scotland for his Soat Meantain ranch. The famous Highland herd is now on the ocean. Hr. Hill hopes to introduce in Montena a breed of cattle that will command a good price for beef and butter fat. Mr. Hill claims this to be one of the finest herds ever raised in Scotland."

In an oditorial entitled "The Pays for Cotton?" The Journal of Commorce for January 30 says: "In the past month or two the price of raw cotton has risen ten or more cents. The pays this additional levy from which the cotton grower is benefiting so greatly? The speculator who is so much in evidence in the market these dayer dertainly not -- except possibly to some extent when he is anwise in his transactions. The mille? Again the eneser must be in the negative except to the extent that the manufacturer is anable to sell his soeds at the prices he expected to get for them. As rapid as has been the advance in action, careful observers who have theroughly studied the figures essert that prices of finished outton goods have risen even feater. So far there is little evidence that the consumer has seriously rebelled at this heavy increase in his bardens. The truth seems to be that, coming as it did at the end of the so-called bayers' strike, the everage consumer was canght in the amplement situation of having his wardrobe bare. He probably had but little choice in the matter. But once having relieved the more pressing of his needs, will be continue to go into the market for cotton goods at prevailing prices? That is a question well worth the thought of a good many in the business community."

otern tional rests The results of ten years progress in developing eastern national forests are shown in the annual report of the Dational Forest Reservation Commission, just issued. This states that more than 2,000,000 acres have clready been acquired by parchase for forests in eleven Bastern States during the ten years this commission has been in existence. Of this area, the report states, 440,000 acres are in the White Mountains, 74,000 in Northeastern Pennsylvania, and 1,640,000 in the Southern Appalachians and the Omarks. Although the greater part of this land has been recently cut-over and has no timber issuedictely salable, the income for the last three years has averaged more than $100,000 a year, of which more than one—third has been turned over to the states and local communities for roads and achools in lieu of taxos. (Press, Jan. 51.)

"It seems to us that the manner in which the great markets have behaved during the past month, and especially suring the past fortnight, is more than adequate proof that it is the best collective jadgment of the world's men of affairs, in the light of all the maltitudinous information they have obtained from all sorts of sources, that the action of France in occupying the Ruhr district of Germany will be followed neither by a renewal of the war in Europe nor by the economic collapse of Germany. France and the rest of Continental Europe. If we are correct in this assumption, as we believe we are, it would appear to follow that the world's judgment with regard to the political and economic expediency of the French undertaking as by no means as adverse as it is represented to be by many British and American politicians and publicists; or, in other words, the general body of the world's experienced men of affairs estimates the chances of at least reasonable saccoss for the French in their venture on being for greater than their critics would have as think. While it is obvious that the possibilities of mishes in what the French have set out to do are both numerous and great. the general opinion of the world holds that these possibilities are not so overwhelmingly unfavorable that the failure of the French to attain their ends is a foregone conclusion. ... That over may be said by the Germans themselves or by the advocates of their sease in other countries, like ir. Lloyd George or Mr. John Meynerd Meynes, the world at large simply does not believe that Germany is no economically helpless as she is represented to be, or that she could not find weys and means of making good the harm she wrought in France and Belgium, if she had the will so to do. There are few persons of intelligence outside of Germany who, if maked whether in their opinion Germany has loyally endeavored to do everything within her power to pay the reparations she agreed to pay, will not find themselves compolled to reply that, on the contrary. Germany has shown both the disposition and the intention to employ any and every means, even the most desperate and the most harmful to her own ultimate welfare. to escape payment."

nign lations 2. The Journal of Commerce for January 50 says in an editorial on "isolation at Washington": "International isolation aces not exist except as an impossible dream. ... Every country is accious to exchange its surplus products with those of other countries despite the obstacles imposed by tariffo and other discriminations. In the United States agriculture is the leading industry. Our fermers produce veetly more grain, meat, cotton and fruit then the country oan concume; and our producers of textiles, steel, mechinery, minerale, oile, etc., do likewise. Among well-informed businees mon it is thoroughly understood that this country would stagnate without foreign markets and quickly become a swamp of industrial decay. That is what isolation would really mean to the western farmer, the southern planter and the eastern manufacturer upon whom our huge transportation and banking interests absolutely depend. A few days ago ex-Jovernor Lowden of Illinois, while condemning the policy of isolation, sold that it would cost the United States 50 per . cent. of its wheat fields. 20 per cent. of its corn fields and 50 per cent. of its cotton fields, besides closing many of its himes and procipitating a complete industrial and economic revolution. Then Americans thereaghly understand what isolation means they will quickly sicken of it. The difficulty is they do not adequately understand, and those apon whom they rely for leadership either leck initiative and courage to garry on a campaign of education or are themselves

The National Provisioner for January 27 says in an editorial: "If the Government figures are accurate, as they undoabtedly ere, it is evident that our hog population has increased considerably, and probably will increase more. There is a general impression prevalent in trade circles that the consumption of meat, especially pork products, increased substantially during the last three months of 1922. Unfortunately, official figures are lacking to show what actually happened during these three months. The only figures which are available for 1988, however -- those covering the consemption of Federally-Inspected pork for the nine mentas ending with deptember -- show a decline of about three posnes per ospite, as opmpared with the same period in 1921. Unless consumption does increase -- and increase substantially -- it looks as if the supply of pork during the next several months would be relatively larger than the demand."

W.G. Lobjoit, Controller of Horticalture, British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, says in an article entitled "Glimpses of American Horticulture." in The Journal of the Ministry of Agriculture (London) for January: "... There are diroumstances which appear to owe their exintende to the character of the American people, who seem possessed of a fever, indused by a resetion to the manyvoiced call of apportunity and the hustle and haste of a new country with almost limitless potentialities, to exploit the chance of to-day without waiting to consider what will be the effect on tomorrow. This attitude of mind may account for the American neglect of gardens, for hardly any attempt beens to have been made to cultivate the garden such as British people know it. ... The European allotment does not appear to exist in the States, though there are a few plots at sachington on some land reclaimed by dreaging from the River Potomo that might be described as allotments. Tashington, a city of 400,000 inhabitants, possesses fever of those plots than would suffice a country village in England. ... The practice of forcing wild flowers such as foxelove and cornflower may be dee to this heate of exploitation; or porheps to the policy of the Federal Norticaltaral Board, which, by making the importation of the better types elmost impossible, drives people to the common and makes possible fortunes from weeds. ... Just what form it will take can not be told at this time.
There will be wirepulling and trading on it, but probably its chief features will be longer terms of credits and larger loans. This will accommodate western farmers and stock feeders, who are often obliged to hold feeding cattle that any of these proposed plans for credit are to be of any great service to our eastern farmers. As a class they are far

Country Life (London) for Jeruary 20 says in an editorial: "Last week we directed attention to the fact that the railways have lowered their rates for the corriage by passenger trains of fruit and dairy produce to considerably less than the Fost office rates. That, however, does not tough the main grievence of the firmer, which is that for too much is charged to him for the carriage of bully produce. It is not a new grievenoe, but naturally it is made more keonly felt in times of depression. Another respon for the outery that is being raised just now is that the railways are in the way of assering many adventages and much coulth from the municipation of the companies. It is confidently expocted that the reduction in the number of companies will lead to very great economies in the sorking of railways and greatly reduce the general expenses. ... The Dutehnan, no distrocit to him, is a keen man of basiness, and his Covernment has in this country a very efficient organization for retailing where goods from holland can be placed nost offectively, and it is greatly due to the cheapseum of the reliesy rates that caract gardeners at Antwerp or Actterdam osn place their produce on inglish markets at prices more tempting then those given for home produce. This, in light, is a very serious obstrole to the development of the land. Good returns encourage improved oultivation; and if the anglish market gardener had to compete on equal terms with bis Continental rivals, he would very soon make blaself a real equal in hasbandry. The Low Countries, in regard to vegetables, fruit and pertain kinds of florers, are in the some position as Lenmark in remord to butter and other dairy products. ttle Market argentina

The Betional Provisioner for January 27 says in an editorial: "Recently the Argentine Government autablished a new form of estile market. It was in effect a sort of cattle exchange which would emble cattle to be sold for fature delivery. In this way it was proposed to stabilize the sarket and prices. However, the latest reports from Argenting indicate that the plan has not worked out and. indeed, the cattle trade of that country is in a bad cay. with prices very low. As a new remedy the Argentine Covernment is proposing through a recent presidential measure to Congress to establish a Covernment control of the most industry with the idea of benefiting the cattle producer and getting over the asttle orisis. The fact is that there is not yet a sound view being taken of the real facts of the mitmation and the possible remedies. For it is not a local matter and no one measure is going to employee conditions. That the country needs is adequate markets for its ortile products that have the capacity to pay for them. But the remody is not a junctime with a system of open competitive each live-stock markets which, established in the Duited States about the time of the Civil Sar. has been adopted by other countries where there are the same conditions of meat production. As a contemporary has put it recently, 'the more we use of our own sorderful system of great sentral competitive live-stock markets, with second for large and small shipper, large and small killer alike, the less we think of the wild, irrational ambatitates offered. Labor who would destroy or origine these markets would only injure the man in the country. 12

The lichigan Permer for Jenuary 27 says is an editorial: "Seventy per cent. or core of the farzers of Lichigan are interested directly in the question of drainage. One-third of the improved land in our farms, or four and one-helf million tilled sores, is in seed of artificial means for carrying away surplay melature. ... Since lower costs and higher production is the besid of all successful businesses, it seems to us, at least, that here is one factor which should be given the closest consideration by the farmer and by those who are seeking to sid in the solution of practical farm economies."

Since Larch, 1988, there has been a very considerable dealine, and taged on such information as the Marufacturers weard has been able to gather, we think it altogether probable that a complete census of farm property velues for the complettee of the lest censes in 1920 to the present time would show an acgregate dealine of not less than $18,000.000.000. ... :t coess. Therefore, said to estimate that the loss to farmers of the opentry by the dealine of farm land values and the loss on two years' grops which had been reised at high cost very clearly and possibly quite equals the aggreeate amount of capital invested in all the rellroads and in the iron and steel industry and in the textile and the lumber industrios in all their ramifications. These figures are so stargering that they depend the most exhaustive stody by the whole country. They also emphasize very strongly the incortance of our recent segrestion that descress should at ores authorize the Durand of the Consus to make a complete investigation of farm land values at present in order to show the exect values now as compared with the 1919 values reported by the length of that year."

un in Cerseny "The Flature of the Cermen Lost" is the title of an article by John Lovery Linpson in the Few Jepublic for Jacobry 31. This coys in part: The cap between the Beichster ration total of 171 million bushels, and the 96 million bushels of the quotes required from the producers, is the import program -- 75 million bashole. This is the supertity which the Covernment plans to import daring the crop year from boptomber, 1922, to Angast, 1925, it is true that between two and three times 96 million bashels of whast ard rye will remain in the hands of the producers. This evalu will be consumed by the farming population, sold on the open morket and fed to farm atook. But due to intrinute political and applied issued. It appears impracticable for the Jovernment to raise its requisition figure and lay hold of the surplus. It plans, therefore, to buy on the world carket 76 million boshols of grain, a quantity alightly larger than that imported last year and approximately half as great as the everage wheat imports of Great Britain. The Unversional hopes for the exte of economy to include in this figure as such rye so possible, but the sotual state of world supplies will deade the rejor part of the imports to be ansat. Leabers of the grain trade at Hauburg are inclined to doubt the delivery of even of militer busheld by the producers, and regard the Coversment's import program as a minimum likely to be exceeded. Profitainl estimates of elect and rye imports to August. 1923, ran ap to 90 million bashels or bi her. Recent attempts to reduce the number of breed-ord holders ere not believed to have been very effective and the Sovernment may also be obliged to ecommulate seelitional stocks against emergenaics. Thile the foregoing is opidion rather tase fact. it seems clear that recurrent distorbances in Corman finence and the subordination of Coverment parchases to political exigencies have rendered and will render the whole course of the Hamburg grain trade spanned and unpredictable. So long as the reparations question remains in its more bombastic phase, grain cargoes will doubtless be ordered by fits and starts rather than with deliberate business foresight. The projected government grain purchases abroad for the crop year 1922-No sill cost in the neighborhood of $100.000.000.

M. W. Bomis days in the California Cultivator for Junuary 27: "Luite pensibly the most important thing in connection with the development of arisons was the vote of the selt liver Valley sater bours association, carly in Jenaary, appropriating $1.800.000 (to be reised by an issue of bonds) for the building of earther dem on the built siver. at Lorson Flats, increasing capacity of the Accesvelt reservoir, and the installation of enother power plant. ... wary irrigation projects have suffered deterioration in the past on account of water-logged land. Profiting by the experience of much districts, the Salt River Velley has more of out a plan for drainego and installed a system. This drainege work is now 90 per cent. accolote, and proving entirely secondsfal. The principal feature of this erainese system that differe from others is that the sater table is lesered by purping from deep wells, which permits the sikuline water in the apper atrata to leach down into the soil in the summer spich has proved to be most successful in rools iming water logued lands in the Cauthwest. ... The adventure of this system is that the sater tage obtained from pamping is prestically pare and excellent for irrigation, consequently it can be distributed into capule and re-seed, so to spouk. It is this additional water developed from the drainage pumping plants shirk saids possible the development of other lands outside the project."

Theo H. Frice says is an editorial in Commerce and Finance for January 31: "An advance of from 12 to 16 per cent. In the price of tailor-made clothing was predicted by the Decretary of the Sational Lecebant Soller Lesigners' Association in session at at. Losis last week, and a telegrem from St. Johns, herfoundland, reports that the extensive iron mines there have been that down because the Cornea menufacturers who had contracted for their catput were no longer able to take it. Those two secmingly animportant ness items are quoted because they connote some tendencies canerally disserble. Frices are adventish and projection is decreasing in the United States, chiefly because labor is scarce and the baying power of Agree to diminishing as the French occupation of the dubr brings nearer the cay when the industrial paralysis of Germany may be followed by revolation or mar. ... it remains to be seen how the altimate consumer will not when retail prices ere raised, on they must be to a parity with the sholesale scripts, but recent history assessts that he may reduce his purchases unless wagon and agricultural profits are speedily increased. That the wage carpers in end to make an effort to balance their indgeto by gotting higher pay is already evident from the domando that are being made by their union leaders, but the farmers and the ermy of 'shite collar' corkers who are not organized have no such means of protecting themselves and it dome cartain that they will be compelled to buy less as the parebooing power of their dollars diminishes."

mrve Beerd m Jere mperity Renewed indications of agricultaral recovery after months of depression were given in reports and public January 51 by the loderal Remorve Board, which show that wales of farm implements in December and January proved that the farmer's buying power was being restored. Jeaseber sales were more than double those of Legenber, 1981, and the increases were sales assisted in January. (Trees, Jeb. 1.)

Mid-in-Patrio Midlation

The New Republic for January 21 says in an editorial: "'Troth-in-Jebrics appears to be a red reg not only to the woolen menufacturers, but to the clothing designers as well.
At the recent Designers' Convention at Cincinnati it was unentmonely resolved that the passage of the trath-is-Rebrica bill weals benefit the large wool growers, would require an army to enforce it, and would be a detriment to the clathing trade. This passes a legman's emberoteding. The bill in question does not interfere with the besiness of mixing dotton or 'reverted wool' (shoddy) with virgin wool in the manufacture of cloth. It worsly requires these substitute actorials to pass on their own serits. Lanufacturers assert that fabrics made of mixed new wool and sheday are eften botter than fabrica sade wholly of sew wool. Obwidly an admixture of cotton also represents an improvement in moster clothing. Americans are not so staple that they seed 'Lies-in-Schrice' to make them this the better procuet. There our be seen obtain persons she weald incist on using fabries of wirgin wool, even after the superiority of the mixed product hed been demonstrated. Thy not let them here their virgin wool, and saffer the consequences?"

The Rural hew Yorker for February & says in an editorial on the farm blos in Congress: " ... If we have twentyone fearloss men in the United States benate who will do what we cak them to do, and do it feerlessly and openly, it does not make much difference what their private business may be. These men are pushed along by consentrated public sentiment. The eastern people may wonder how it comes that these men as a break away from party ties and work for definite agrioultural purposes, but the western people have been gaigker to realize the power of concentration behind a representative. ... For yours furners have sent sen to abshington, but the half-hearted power given them could not make a dent on the solid well of prejudice and politics which sarrounds Congress. Then, through organization and desperation, the agricultural states generated a force which has sent their representatives through the walls of political habit. In an article on "Argenic and the Boll deevil." Commerce Monthly (New York) for Jobraery days: "The expension of supplies of arsenic by the extension of direct production wan not be expected to farnish chasp ersenic. -oreover, developments along this line are hazardous ventares because of the uncertainty of continued demand. Alternative clans for combating the boll weevil which require less arsenic or none at all are continuelly being suggested, and the high price of armenic resulting from the extensive application of calcium armerate would itself be added incentive to discover less expensive methode of dealing with the weevil. Some increase in foreign supplies may be expected if an attractive price is maintained, bet it is anlikely that these could be relied upon to meet the situation. A plant for direct production of preento has been established in australia, but potential consumption there in very great, so arounic is used to destroy the prickly pear. an extremely troublesome pest. It is reported that the greater part of the Canadian output for the coming year has already been contracted for in Australia to supplement domestic output. wer Grading

The Lairy Record for Jenuary 24 says in an ecitorial: "Lore and more frequently the question is heard, whenever a group of creamerymen gather, as to say butter is not graded by Covernment Inspectors, and payment made on that basis. in arguing for the official classification of butter by iodoral rather than by exchange inspectors, the grading of shoat is irrariably cited as an example of the saccess of Covernment inspection and the stand is taken that there is no reason why butter should not be controlled in the sema way. It is declared that each a method would eliminate all controversion between shipper and receiver and assure fairness to both. There as understanding of the celiber of the exchange inappotors and the scope of their work exists, the promount for "overmeent grading is based entirely on the belief that this work should not be done by representatives of a private or semi-public organization; there is no unestion of the ability or integrity of the inspectors, involved. If the Covernment were to secure the services of a chief inapostor of recognized ability for this purpose and appropriate enough zoney for the work to enable him to hire capable inopertors in sufficient numbers, there would at least be the assurance that the work would be properly done. But it would be no place for a man who did not know his business -- which would imply not only knowing how to judge batter but having a wide knowledge of its marketing as well. Wrading wheat is largely mechanical. Scoring batter is not an exact science. Two capable inspectors might come fairly close in scoring a phipment of better, but one sapeble acorer and one who was imagable would almost certainly have a wide variance in ther scored. Thich means that one faulty mooring would mean a heavy loss to either the shipper or the receiver. And, it is eafe to say that the oreemerymen who felt that he had been graded too low would not feel estisfied merely because a Government men had scared his butter. If we are to have Sovernment inspection, then, the first important thing is that enough money be appropriated for the work to assure the securing of capable men for the work. But there is enother thing which shald be more generally understood by crosserymen before they can consider thouselves prepared to operate under a Sovernment inspection system. This is the fact that the term fittee is frequently a parely relative term. Then the market is glasted with fine butter, buyers are inclined to be more critical and to demand 'extras' which normally would be placed in the higher seering lots. Then abole butter is scarce, on the other hand, lots which ordinarily fail below a 92 score are accepted as Extres. Under a governmental inspection service this would seen that the receiver would fragaently find difficulty in pareneding buyers to accept

Modern Ferming for Jenuary ES says in an editorial: "lines the county agent work was organized, more than a decude ago, there never has been a time when the countr agents were in the public eye as much as at present. They here been brought prominently to the attention of the people caring the var and also the reconstruction period that bee followed. This has been beneficial, as advertisement always is, but at the same time it has focused the attention of the public on the county agent in such a way as to carry with it a larger responsibility. His sots are being weighed in the balance of public continent. Just as his work is beneficial and helpful to the larger class of uitizens, it is also inimical to the interests of a smaller class who have long profited by the lack of information in the hands of the people and consequently are opposed to any change. This is poposially true as to the economic side of the agents' work, says The Linsissippi Demonstrator. Therefore, every error on the part of the agent is pounced upon and every effort made to emberrase him, even destroy bin if possible. It has ever been this way and probably always will be, but if the egent is discreet. Is always resoonably sure that he is right, and can give a good account of himself. unavoidable opposition based upon selfish grands need not bother him a great deal. Here important, however, is the great mass of people at heart friendly with the work but who have a elegrer vision of the function of the county egent. their very regard for the work has unused them to set a high standard for the county agent, which he must live up to or saffer in the public esteem. Just at this time there is a strong trend of thought in the minds of intelligent people that the county agent must be more then a more handy must to perform a perhanal service for an individual here and there. That if he is going to perform his real fametion and fally justify a liberal measure of public support, he must be a real leader and tempher. ... He must not only derry this Information direct to the people, but he must be able to apply it in such a corroot and practical way that it may be put to prectical use in solving their problems on their force and in their homes. Therefore, we being that the agente should get somewhat mearer to the original plan of form demonstration work. This has been difficult, owing to the strong domands apon the agent daring and immediately following the wer for service work, such as the cooperative sale of farm products, the purchase of farm sapplies, etc. But in this day of organisation, an agent is not worthy of his position if he continues to spend his time buying thinge for people and selling things for people, and never gets his people in position to do these things for themselves. If he is a real leader and teacher -- which he is or he is in the wrong place - he sill so organize his communities that after

The Country Sentlessan for February 5 says in an editorial: "loster borset, of the Federal Bureau of Animal industry, made a great contribution to ocience and agriculture none years ego when he discovered hog-chelers surum by which it is consible to immunize hogs so they will not contract the disease. The Department of Agriculture has spent large cons annually in introducing this serom and teaching veterinarians and farmers how to use it and the value of its acc. For Congrees plans a course of retraction and is this year reducing the appropriation for this work by more than $100,000. It purposes to let the states handle tale important taux to an increasing extent. The House has passed an appropriation for next year of $406.000, whereas the states expended last year in hog-cholors work about (200,000. ... The hog belt of the Central Root. from the Federal standpoint, must be protected from an outbreak of cholers which would amount to the oldfachloned seourge. Oddly enough the appropriations for this work in some of our largest hog-producing states are serely a frection of the amount provided by some of the Jouthern States where hog growing is rapidly assuming formidable proportions. Perhaps we had better keep ap a sufficient amount of Federal work to assure as against repld spread of the disease, and at the same time insist that the states do their shere, and that the man with the hogs lives up to his responsibility. It has been definitely proved that in most cases self-help is usually best. "

The Philadelphia Ledger to-day says in an edi-American Farmer torial: "Out of the welter of discussion of the American farmer, his problems, his points of view, his attitoward his work and his urban customers, has come a clear-cut statefrom Dean Watts, of the State College School of Agriculture. He says t the Agricultural School was forced to refuse 1,000 applicants for adsion in 1922. The dean adds, no doubt basing his opinion, at least in t, on these figures, that there is manifested a constantly growing wrest in the 'back-to-the-farm' movement. We who live in the cities have aroused to an unaccustomed interest in the farmer by a tardy realizaof what might happen to us if he gave up in disgust. Our country has m endowed so richly that food scarcity seemed always a remote and almost possible bugaboo, until the war and Europe's necessities put as on whort ions. Since then we have read many grisly accounts of famine in the t and its European borderland, in countries normally flowing with milk thoney, and reflection on home conditions becomes plain prudence. The rican farmer faces a double problem of production and distribution. The ret part is the more difficult to solve, because of labor shortage and high cost of mechanical substitutes for strong arms. The general applition of the cooperative marketing principle seems to offer relief from sent waste of farm products. It is the farm-help problem that causes momists to throw up their hands and the farmer his job. The most satistory and permanent solution of the man-power problem would be by an exsion and multiplication of this 'back-to-the-farm' movement, this re-Ive to leave the crowded city or the squalid industrial town, to exchange time clock for the sun and an ordered job and weekly pay envelope for rd but healthy work plus independence."

Sugere Davesport says in as article in The Chiladelphia Ledger for February 3: "Back of all statistics lies the fact that agriculture is slowing down in the United States. This can hardly seem possible in the face of high yields and the bamper crops of recent years, even since the furner was deflated. But it must not be forgotten that we have been farcred by exceedingly productive seasons for a jumber of years, and season is by fer the most potent fuctor in production. So fer as the farmers' efforts alone are concerned, they are aleakening not from choice but from necessity, and when the first 'off meason' arrives, as it is due to arrive some time soon, then the world at large will realize more than now what has happened to the farmers during the industrial crase that is upon as. The year 1922 is counted an improvement over 1921 in acricalture as in most enterprises; but the improvement needs to be analyzed. It is an improvement in the sense that farm products have been made at less expense, for the farmer has learned the leason that the first element in the production of staple goods is economy. The farmer as a whole is on the reboand since he tomaked bottom in 1920; but he is beginning to feel the results of lessened sutley on the land, and many a good farmer will tell you that be made less money last year then he did the year before. This is not universel, but it is altogether too common to be confortable. The appard trend of prices has tended to dispol the general gloom; but it suggests the old-time definition of faith as the substance of things hoped for and the cridence of things not seen. ... The only real and permanent relief for the mess of farmers is cheapened production, and they are beginning to see and understand that with half the world overridden and such prosperity as we have not of a substantial kind, there is little to encourage the farmer to more than ordinary effort, which means lessened production as measured against worting output when atimalated by patriotic ardor and assisted by good seasons. Even exricaltaral credit only staves off the day: it does not pay debis -- debts often incurred for machinery to replace the labor entired to the shops by sages the farmer could not meet and which all the power of organized seventage is laboring to maintain. All this means a slowing up of farming, the effects of which will be more evident a little later on to the man who sesumes that in come blind way the farmer can and will take care of himself. As an individual be can, of course, but what it will do to egriculture and ultimately to the renforming class is a different matter. For some light on this question, read the later chapters of Roman history. ... "

The New York Times for February 3 says in an editorial: " ... Cooperation is not a sort of magic with which profits may be conjured. Farmers' cooperative accieties accused on the profite system, but fell when menered for other ends. The separtment of Agriculture has just published a list of the fallare of 200 out of 245 farmers' occuparative concerns. Among the reasons given are inefficiency of management, excessive sredit allowances, dishonesty, and concentration of conscient in too fer hands. But there are conspicuously successful cooperative coeleties. There might be such succouses swong farmers' opeparative banks, but they would heve to be run on sall street lines. Sithin a few days the barley lobacco Grovers have marketed 80 per cent. of their crop at 21.98 cents, seeinst 12 cents when the hight-riders ruled the group before the cooperative growers took over the job. On the other hand, the leanut Growers' Exchange has just reorganized its affairs, with claims for (3,600,000) against its management. There are official reports of 927 farmers' cooperative societies in the group of Granger Statem The last balletin of the Department of Agriculture contains both herrible examples of cooperative fullares and others of generous banking accommodations to farmers. If the farmers went to cooperate, nothing need stop them. But when they desire to exploit the Tressury's tax money for their particular profit, in the name of benevolence and homenity. it is time to appeal to reason and fact and let the sijentives go. The siddle-class millions are the sifferers from the plea for privilege by the various classes which seek to impose their will."

The Wall Street Journal for February S says in an editorial: "That official meddler, the rederal crade commission, has been ordered by the benute to make a sweeping investigation into the dotton industry, from seed to fatric. Now true it is that satan always finds work for iale hards to do if only to keep them from enything uneful! A year ago March cotton sold for 16.90 cents a pound, and to-day is around 27.27, which would look like a very large increase in price, when all direumetances are considered. The statistical position of oction is strong; there is not enough on hand to keep mills running at normal superity until the new crop is available. and as for that new crop yet to be planted and plaked, the probabilities are that it will be smeller than the needs of the world's spinners. Under ordinury conditions cotton would call at prices never draumed of since the Civil war. But somittions are not ordinary. Mill operators buy cotion for the sole purpose of apinaing and weaving into fabrics. They can produce goods only as they can coll them. Cripple the carkets for goods and rev cotton must suffer. American mills working at 100 per cent. capacity can consume less than half the normal crop; the belance must find a market in harope. 'Se are self-contained,' and 'our consumptive capacity is so great that we are independent of aurope. " We all know this to be true because members of Congress and the Senate have repeatedly told us co. Int to preserve this independence we must carteil our cotton . production one-balf. The people of Friendly Islands showed the may to independence of foreign markets, exing out a precarious living by taking in each other's sesking. To, too, our live within ourselves. If we shoome. But to do it we must est our cotton production more than one-half, tarn beek a third of the weest land into fallow, raise less corn, feedstaff and live stock, and discharge 10 or 15 per cent. of the men working in factories, letting them got a living as best they may. Tracic as this might be, there can be no secuping the stern secessity of cutting production to the measure of demestic consumption. Fill executive and legislative Pashington ever were up to the one great fast that what the farmers need is an outlet for their stuff? All the investigations Congress oan engineer will not open a market for a bale of eatton or a bushel of wheat. . verybody entaine of executive and legislative circles must now know that the farmers are absolutely dependent upon surope and the world for their surplus market. A dispatch from Lansing, Bloh., to the Letroit Proc Fresa of February 1 mays: "Sighway legislation moved into prominence in the House Wednesday, with a concarrent resolation, introduced by Representative Palmer, of Detroit. to appeal to Congress to suspend further rederal aid to State road building; a bill by Representative Leanon, of Genever, to suspend the issuance of state highway bonds, and s bill by Representative Howe, of Camden, to fix on the State perpetual responsibility for the saintenance of trunk line roads. Representative Talmer's resolution was based on the premise that the menithier states, including sichiman, contribute for more to the fund from which the Federal highway fund is dispensed than they receive in direct sid. do estimates that michigan contributes 13 in Federal taxes for each 11 of highway aid repelved from the Federal Government, and that the paternalistic tendency of the Pational Covernment is a constant temptation to the states and amaller Government units to expend more money in this direction than prudence dictates, with a consequent increase in direct tax barden. ... "

t Animals

The Ball Street Joarnal for sebraary 2 says in an editorial: "In the year 1922 meat unimals dressed under Federal inspection numbered 66.912.579 compared with 63. 415,742 in 1921. ... This increase in numbers of enimals prepared for food was mostly in cattle and hoge, which would mean more in pounds of meat then if it had been in sheep and leabs. Exports of fresh beef, fresh pork, lard and bagon were considerably less than in 1921, those of fresh beef falling off two-thirds and fresh pork about onehalf. surmers and live-atookmen, dispatisfied with conditions making the evereme purchaning value of the form dollar only 69 cents for the whole year, may have difficulty in reconciling these figures with statements of politicians that we were independent of europe. The fermer may ever become alsuntinfied with the getting-us-nowhere declaration toot 'Aurope must set house in order.' As the beef and pork did not go abroad in any considerable volume, it, of course, stayed here. Cold storage boldings in 1922 were, on the everage, less than in 1921. As the supply was considerably larger, and exports less, the logical conclusion is that domestic consumption was prester. ... the increased consumption in 1922 shows full employment, at least, for the exployable. improved domestic basiness consitions are seen in this fact. That foreign costoners did not take as much meat so formerly might also be taken to disprove the statemente, so often given out in the post year by administration officials, that 'suropean conditions are growing better.' The farmers might ask washington to wake up to the fact that the restoration of the buying power of surpe will help to bring the value of the farmer e dollar up to 100 cents.

House leaders explained February 5 that because of "difficulties" in the way an agreement between the Senate and the House on farm credit legislation might not be possible before final adjournment. (Press, Feb.6.)

David Lawrence says in an article on the farm credit bills pending in cress, in The Washington Star for February 5: "The first milestone in farmer's fight for the same facilities of finance as the manufacturer promoter of industry has been reached. Three bills passed by the Senate will be put through the House in the next fortnight, and President Hardwho pledged himself to those measures at the agricultural conference the White House last Thanksgiving will sign them.

"Broadly speaking, the effect of the farm credit legislation will be educe interest rates to the farmer. He has been paying 7 and 8 per cent. in some cases as high as 10 per cent. to get money, while his more unate fellow citizens in the marts of arban finance have been getting y for generations at 6 per cent. and less. This discrimination has not one of intent. but accident. For the farmer has had no machinery of dit built up for him whereby capital could be secured in an orderly hion and under conditions that would appeal to investors at large. ... or the new bills the farmer can in some cases get three years' credit. re would be set aside capital for agricultural purposes which can not disturbed by needs of other industries. In order to make the new farm m bonds attractive it is proposed to make them tax exempt. Secretary Meldoesn't like this because he says it is inconsistent with the administion's effort to abolish all tax exempts by constitutional amendment. the answer of the farm bloc is that the farm loan bonds issued for trage purposes now are exempt and that other tax exempts are in the ket new and antil all tax-exempt securities are forbidden by the Constilon, which may take two or three years to get through all state legislaoo, the farmers might as well go into the borrowing market on as attive terms as possible. ... On the whole, the administration is proud the farm program and feels the agrarian movement in this country will considerably calmed by what has been done."

- 1. In a review of farm oredit legislation. The ashirgton Fost for February 5 says: "with the passage of both the Capper and Lenroot bills by the senate, the form of the agricultural credits legislation which will be encoted at this session is now fairly certain. While some changes in the Senate bills will be made in the House, there is little resson to doubt that the essential features of both the lapper and Lenroot bills will be approved. A third measure relating to rural credits which is likely to be enacted into law at this pession is the Strong bill amending the Federal Farm Loan Act. which was recently reported from the House Committee on Panking and barrency. This bill makes administrative amendments which are degired by the Ferm Loan Board and by farm organirations. Other agricultural relief bills which are penalne before Jonaress have little chance of favorable action at this accaion. The bills which seem to be doomed to die either in committee or on the calendar of one House or the other inclade the Norbeck-Welson bill, providing for the financing of exports of farm products by the war kinance Corporation; the Ferris-Sinclair bill, authorizing the creation of a (100.000.000 corporation to buy and sell form products: the Buream bill, authorizing $1,000,000,000 credit to Germany for the purchase of American products, and the Ladd. Sinclair and Little price stabilisation bills."
- The Journal of Commerce for February 5 says in an editorial: "Perhaps the best that ean be said about the rural credit program of the Senate, brought to completion with the passage of the Lenroot bill on Friday, is that it might have been worse. ... But what has the Senate really done for the farmer for whom it professes so much solicitous concern? Time only our snawer that question in detail. There are a number of possibilities. Just which of them will eventuate remains to be seen. But it is safe enough to say that whatever good in done the farmer will be costly to the rest of the community, and quite needlessly costly at that. Has it never desmed upon the occasionenese of some of the sci-disart friends of the fermer that there is need for a really offective rural credit system and that such a system need not, and should not, penalise the rest of the community? If so, they have kept the fact closely to themselves and preferred to give the farmer a quack remedy in the apparent hope that it will soothe him into quietude."

The Joarnal of Commerce for February S asys in an editorial: "... Current reports quite generally are to the effect that the growers intend to increase their acrease to a maximum in order to take full advantage of the profitable prices that now seem assured for all that they are likely to be able to produce. In this a wise policy? Certainly there is nothing in the existing situation that should deter the planter from raising all the cotton he can at reasonable unit costs. Certain facts in the current situation, however, should not escape the farmer's attention, and which ought to rander him caroful not to overreach himself in the matter of

In the first place, the labor situation should give him pause. It seems to be an established fact that labor is not oversbandant seywhere in the cotten belt; that perhaps in the majority of districts a distinct shortage exists, and that an acute searcity of hands prevails in not a few important sections. To plant more cotten than can be properly cultivated is but to invite a low yield end high costs. Again, in spite of large but as yet intangible promises by the american cotten association, there is all too much reason to expect a drastic shortage of calcium arsenate with which to fight the boll weevil. The farmer can not afford to plant cotten only to have it afford the weevil a resting place. He should give these considerations his most careful thought before deciding upon his acreage for the coming season."

John M. Relley, dairyman, vice president of the Retional Holatein Association, and general attorney for Ringling Brothers' circus, has been devoting some time to telling dairy farmers of New York State and the West that until they follow the methods of the circus they never will be self-supporting, much less profit makers. In a long article in The New York Times for February 4 Mr. Melley says: "The circus business is a profitable basiness because it advertises and advertises under a trade name. The dairy basiness is a failure because it doesn't advertise ander a trade or any other name. in New York cows produce every forty hours $1.000.000 of marketable produce, but the dairy cow has had no press agent. So have developed the cow. but she has never realized what a worthless business manager she has. If Mockefeller did business as you do, resoling would cost 15 a mailon. There is not a Congress elected but what some man goes there pleaged to do something for the dairymen. Thy doesn't the hardware dealer or the blackemith elect a man to Congress to do something for him? He doesn't have to -- he is doing things for himself."

The Nebraska Farmer for February 5 says in an editorial: "Huny years ago we concluded it was desirable for the farmer to organize for cooperative action. In harmony with that conclasion, we have consistently given our support to cooperstive organizations. We still believe that this plan of progress is sound, and it is our intention to continue to support it. Moreover, we recognise that there are other types of organizations of farmers which are justifiable and useful in their field, and we want to encourage those, too. ... It will be construed by some as significant, though we do not consider it alarming, that all farmers' organizations, even the strongest of them, have shown a decline during the past two years. This is properly credited to the same factors that have affected every essential line of business. It is in times like this that the utmost care must be exercised in order that no untoward inflaence may be permitted to retard the proper progress of farmers' organinations, for, under the burden that must be borne, there is enough to contend against without inviting trouble."

ign Trade

The Southern Planter for February 1 mays in an editorial: "Farm products may not be expected to soll at satisfactory figures unless there is a foreign depend for the overplas from our farms; and it is clear that each a demand is not to be anticipated unless surope, our main customer. osn be economically restored. For the achievement of auch a desirable result, it must be obvious that the restoration of Sermeny as a purchaser is a matter of first importance. So long as a third or more than a third of the population of continental surope is shot out of the world's markets as a buyer, just so long will commerce, industry and agriculture suffer in those lands which need quetomers for their overproduction. Hasial sympathies, wer artagonisms. other predalistions or projudices, are comprehensible and natural; but the cold logic of the cituation resolves itself into this simple proposition -- the world can entising to no commercial prosperity while an important part of it is kept on a starvation or 'necessity' basis. The great bulk of trade between nations is done on virtually a barter bosiu. ... The American Turber has the deepest concern in the proper outcome of such a pelicy. He is the great exporter. He has an invariable surplue. larger or smaller as the years are good or bad; but he always has a surplus for export. If Europe can not buy that surplue, or any approciable part of it, the vales at home are bound to be unsetisfectory and the carry-over from crop season to crop person must act as a drug on all markets. This rehabilitstion of industrial Europe in, therefore, the matter of prime consequence. The physical reconstruction of acvastated ureas may, and most neturally do, seem to be the big affair for the countries immediately usnourmed; but the reconstruction of trade potentialities, the stabilisation of exchange, the restoration of commercial credits -- those ore world affairs: and in these the American fermer is vitally interested."

The Journal of Commerce for February 3 says in an editorial: "Ruch interest is being taken in rural circles. so it is said, in a case in the courts of the state of Annes involving the question of the locality of doulings in grain futures in that State. The porely legalistic aspects of this controversy must, of course, he left to the courts to decide. The broader phases of the agrarian osmpeign against what are usually termed the 'speculators' in the grain markets are of general public concern and should receive the careful attention of the community at large. Our agricultural producers have always had the most inedequate and inaccurate ideas of the operations of our great grain exchanges. Hince time out of mind they have been inclined to view many of the transactions taking place in the 'pit' at Chicego and classbere as 'sambling' pure and simple, a business that has no useful service to perform and which is positively harmful to the farmer. in recent months the rural population has become better organized and politically much stronger. Not annaturally, one of the first objects sought by those agrarian organizations has been to

The problem is how to convince the farmer of the error of his way of thinking about the whole situation. This is a task to which the best thought of the community may well be directed. If effective action is not taken in the matter, serious herm, not only to the farmer but to the estire community, is apt to result."

The Tational City Bank of New York says in its review for February 1: "The symptoms of a growing interest of the West in improved live stock are numerous. The Intional Lairy Show has been held now for two successive years upon the Linnesote State Fair Grounds, and both moetings have been very successful ones. The laufflo international Live Stock Exhibition is an organization with beadquarters at Portland, which has been holding annual shows for several years, and in November last held one which is claimed to have been 'the greatest live-stock exhibition in the world.' The Gregon State Legislature has supported this enterprise liberally. providing it with fine facilities. The dairy interest is already strong in the Pasific Northwest, as evidenced by the fact that while the American Jersey Cattle Club has provided eight championships for butter-int preduction econg Jorseys seven of the eight records are held in treas sione. President press Foresting Bill President Harding has indorsed, with a few suggested changes, a bill now before the House Committee on Agriculture for the conservation of timber resources. Government encouragement of reforestation and the prevention of forest fires. In a letter to Representative re of New York, a member of the committee, the President said that the posed legislation, "represents an important step in the perfection of a ly national forest policy." He suggested strengthening the measure by tralizing taxation upon privately owned timber reserves. This, he said, led be accomplished by cooperation between the state governments and legartment of Agriculture. The Clarke bill carries an appropriation of 10,000. Through cooperation of the Federal and state governments and in land owners, it provides for added protection against forest fires, reforestation of denuded areas and the extension of national forest trees. Commercial west for February S says in an editorial on "The Value of the Furser's Dollar": "Under date of Januery 29 the United States Department of Agriculture sepulied to the press a balletin dealing with the purebasing pover of ferm products. According to this belietin the parchasing power of the farmer's dollar in terms of comparison between prises of farm products and prices of other comedities in becember, 1922, was placed at 68. The average for the year 18 69, compared with 67 in 1991, and with 66 in 1910. In a recent address at bt. Louis, assistant secretary in slev of the Department of Agriculture stated that the total sotual each velue of last year's crops was 23 per cent. greater than in 1921, the increase amounting to approximately two billions of dollars. Dr. Pagaley asserted, however, that the purchasing value of the farmer's dollar still remains 30 per cent. below normal and that 'prosperity can not permenently return until there is a fair exchange rate between the products of farm labor and capital, and the products of factory labor and capital.' In 1922 the volume of crops in the United States was about 8 per cent. more than in 1921. On Descaber 1 farm prises averaged 24 per cent. above prices of a year ago. The total value of the 1922 coltivated crops is placed at [7.483.000, ... These figures prove that the farmer's purchasing poser is fest incressing, that the farmer has more money to handle and is more capable of liquidating his indebtedness. It aust bo taken into consideration that while there has been increased production, the farmer has been paying hisher wises for labor, and prices for necessary commodities have increased in greater proportion than those of the products he has to sell. The February lance of the Ration's Lusiness has a business map prepared by archer fell Locales. This map is so shaded as to show good, fair and poor basiness conditions. Foor business conditions are shown in the Porthwestern states with the exception of fair spots in Dregon, estern Montana, Southern South Lakota, and Lastern Linnesota. In fact about one-fifth of the area of the United States shows poor businees conditions, and about one-twentieth of the area shows good business conditions, while the reasinger is fair. Good business conditions are shown throughout the greater part of lose, and the larger part of Visconsin, these two states making the best showing of any of the states of the union. The average business man will agree that familie consistions in lowe and in discousin differ little from conditions in Mebrasks, Missouri, Illinois, Douth Lakota, or Linnesots. Shat is the reason that business is good in these particular two States while it is only fair in the autrounding states where crops have been as bountiful and marketing conditions ere similar? Is the ability of the average farmer in loss and Tisconsin superior to that of the farmer in the reighboring states, or does some unexplained factor enter into the situation? In his review Er. Dougles attempts no explanation of this condition. That farmers in general are prosperous compared to a few years ago is also indicated by the report recently issued by the secenal deserve board showing that Country Life (London) for January 27 says in an editorial: "Mr. Harry German, the new president of the Sational Farmers' Union, comes into his office with the sympathy and goodwill of all who are connected with the science and practice of agriculture. They fully recognize the difficulties with which the farmers are faced. ... Ar. German has made it clear that he considers it necessary to reduce our dependence on imported food supplies. He has also indicated that an output from the soil could be obtained in excess of the economic maximum. His third point is the retention or the increase at an adequate living wage of the existing number of workers employed on the land. For this and an increased retarn the listion must be prepared to pay, and he severto boldly that this can only be done by sabsidies or protection. With the vest army of unemployed and a tendency for wages to fell in every industry, it is, as dr. boner Law and others have already said. idle to discuss a policy of protection. ... Mr. German appears to hope that the Datton. after consideration, may intimate its desire to see the business organized on a strictly economical basis, and if it does not, he paints a larid picture of 'diminished production, diminished rural employment, and the sonsequent flooking of the rural workers to the towns, and laying down to grass of all but the most fertile lands, and the reversion to what was known as "ranch-farming." the abandonment of all "backto-the-land" mohemen, and all idea of a repopulated countryside. That is a poster printed in letters six foot high. ... oan not believe that in any circumstances the farmers of Great Britain would go back to 'ranch-farming,' which is really the most primitive form of oultivetion. The rural workers are not likely to flook into the towns as long as employment remains at a very low ebb. Those who look forward do not see such prospect of increasing imports from abrond. On the contrary, America and other countries will not be able to keep their worst percal land in cultivation in view of dropping prices. ... that the farmers should do is to explore other means of making a livelihood than that of growing cereals. At the same time, they should not forget that in our solonies and in foreign countries the standard of living has greatly increased, and it is a rank impossibility that wheat and other cereals should be sent into this country as cheaply as they were in the 'sightion of last century. After all, the farmers in this country, in competing with those distant lands, here the adventage of greatly handloupped rivels. even the wheat from darade has to be carried a con-siderable distance on land, and, in addition, the itlantic lies between the immadian growers and the inglish consumers. "The announcement from Bushos Aires that a grand movement of the Argentine Government against foreign corporations is to be undertaken causes no sensetion in this city, for it has been in the wind these many months and has largely accounted for the comparatively low prices for smift international stock.

The aim of the proposed legislation is to make the foreign corporations pay the balk of the taxes. The plan covers all sorts of corporations, but is especially interesting in Chicago as bearing on the packing interest. The general impression of the Chicago Board of Trace is that the movement will come to rething important though it may result in some cort of a compromise. The present president of the Republic is a representative of the 'rurales,' that is, he stands for the farmer class."

Montena Fermer for Fobraary 1 says in an editorial: "Gratifying indeed was the action taken by the county commissioners of Montana at their annual pacting at Molana recently when they heartily indersed the county egricultural extension work. If ever there was a body of men in a position to view the county agent work with a keen and culoulating eye the average board of county commissioners is that body. It is significant that the everyhelming wajority of the county commissioners have weighed the county agent and have not found him wenting. ... Not long ago a farmer from Justern Montana told on that he and a couple of his reightors figured up what the calling demonstrations parried on by the county agent should mean to the county in increased efficiency of egg production. The dall street Journal for Johrnary & says in an editorial: "A statement made in its edvertising by Loody's investors' pervice calls for oriticism, although the effect of the statement was probably hardly realized when it was published. It is as follows: 'The granco-american situation apoears to control the present market activities to an extreme degree. So far from that being the case its effect upon markets has been singularly small. ... The stock mornet has been notably firm and the fluctuations in foreign exchange have really been surprisingly small. If, for instance, the French action really threatened another dropens war, the pound starling would show a very different quotation. but the pound oterling, which folled to develop wearness on war talk, has developed strength on the prospect of a funding of the Pritish debt to us. A rule which holds good of securities holds good of these exchanges. In a market verging on a collapse securities which an be sold at some price are secrifieed to protect those which can not be sold at any price. if the occupation of the Embr really had the market effect which the Loody Jervice assumes, the pound sterling would inevitably have been sold down to protect the seak exchanges of nations which have not be lenged their budgets or cartelled their paper carrenoies. It can not be too often repeated in those columns that dermany would have been a ved from herself and her exploiting financiers by a straightforward receivership ostablished in 1919, as soon as possible after a chort peace treaty sould have been completed."

Where and when will it stop? Will it efore you and I lose either our patience or our purchasing power? Or ellers do as they did before consumers went on 'strike' in 1920? Price advances have lately been recorded, for instance, in oil, sugar, rubber, tires, copper, lead, wool and woolen goods, cotton tton goods, paper and in tin. In fact a notable majority of the price lately have been upward. ... But there are two other very important of consumers who may not be in a financial position to pay steadily ing prices. There is our 35,000,000 agricultural population. The Dent of Agriculture reports that, although 'agriculture from a financial oint is getting better, the farmers' dollar opened the new year with a sing power equal to only sixty-eight cents before the war. Michigan Manafootarer and Financial Record for Febraary 3 mays in an editorial: "We have on several oscasions in the pest walled the attention of people engaged in commoree and industry, in Michigan, to the fact that the domimance, politically, of Michigan, was rapidly passing from the explositural to the industrial communities. The reason that this mitestion was portinent was that Michigan had come to be the fourth or fifth State in point of industrial eminence in the Onion; while at the same time, the business of the state and its moune of transportation and com uniontion were being ruled by laws drawn in the past for an acricaltural State and being drawn in the present by representstives of agriculture acting adversely to industry other than their own. Then the time came that the industrial centers might have a safficient voice in the determination of important questions affecting the interests of concerce and industry, then it might be hoped that legislation having to do with those great interests would be same and sensible. se think that we see in the returns on the vote recently had in this State, on the proposed income tax amendment to the constitution, comething very like this condition coming about. ... The day of exricultural district dominance in aichigan, in the sense that it can be applied to harming commerce and industry, are apparently over. To begin with, there is a great modicum of good sense and economic sanity in the agricultural districts, even though many of the scattered brain proposals come from the same districts. But the saving grace that will preserve the integrity of payroll and maintain the fabric of industry, is pretty largely resident in the cities and will become more prominent therein as the cities inevitably grow."

Florence M. Parker. in the International Labour Review. for Lecember. Only a few seettered independent stores remained. Graduelly, however, interest resmakened, especially slong the 'line of farmers' marketing esacciations. So seneral has this interest become that cooperation, especially cooperative marketing, has been introduced as part of the regular curricula of twenty-five universities and colleges, either as a separate sourse or in connection with other courses. The farmers' marketing movement has now attained immense proportions in the United States. ... Not until the war, however, did a like interest in conaumers' cooperation ap ear. in this case, also, occasionic pressure was the actuating factor. The people of the United States have hitherto been unusually fortunate, feeling comparatively little of the 'pinch' found in older, more thickly soitled countries. Americans have not been notable for thrift, and 'ponny savings', in whatever form, have never been popular. Other factors have contributed toward retarding the development of the consumers' cooperative movement. The population of the United States, unlike that of the countries of Surope where the cooperative movement has resched such great proportions, is not homogeneous. It ombreces many racial elements, among which there is not that mutual understanding necessary for auscessful cooperation. The population is a migratory, shifting one, and one thus lacking the element of stability essential for the development of the cooperative modety. Here the addatry already covered with a network of accleties this factor would be of less effect, since the family on recoving to another section of the country would simply transfer its membership. It is a most effective obstable, however, to the initial establishment of a movement, and under present conditions when a member leaves the locality of a society he is, nine times out of ten, lost to the movement."

Hoard's Dairyman for February E says in an editorial: ... It is but natural that it has taken time since the coming of better transportation facilities and machinery to got the farmer to appropriate that the marketing of his products should be different now then when he produced nearly everything for himself and had but a small surplus to market. His problem is ontirely different now and if he is to succeed he must work with his neighbors in preparing his products for the market and in their distribution. We believe local cooperative institutions should be established. as for as possible, among the dairy farmers for the purpose of manufacturing and standardizing their products and that these local institutions should be federated into groups for the purpose of marketing their products cooperatively, and that these groups may be federated into state-wide organizations. Then this is done, an agency can be established for the purpose of collecting facts and other information regarding the kind of proceets needed in different markets and now to propare these different products for the various markets.

established that will permit the farmers' cooperative organizations to borrow soney to carry surpluses the same as is extended to corporations or individuals. The dasping of the farmers' products on the market has always been to his and to the consumer's disadvantage. There should be established a system of marketing that will merchandise his products the same as other industries merchandise theirs. This can not be done unless the farmer is willing to be a cooperator and less of an individualist."

profit is small but there is a profit instead of a loss as formerly. With the increased prospects of profit through organization there has been an increase in the number of growers and increased acrouge which accounts for the greater production. It goes to show that it is difficult to create a monopoly. As soon as a thing pays others got into the pame. Organization made it pay but organization could not keep down production and keep up prices. Their profits have been small, but profits nevertheless. Can the inited States Orain Growers, covering a far greater territory, do more than the raisin growers in ten years? Can the grain growers hope for greater profits through erganisation than the reisin growers have had? Organization will help get profits, but profits will necessarily be small. That is the point we wish to make so that none will be disappointed in the future. If the growers can only steady the market so there will be no seasons of loss they will do a great work."

The Oregon Farmer for February 1 says: " 'The most erketing important question, from the immediate and practical side, is not export markets, which are absorbing all they can be expected to take. but reduction of costs. The foregoing sentence is quoted from an address made by Cartia L. Cocher. accistant Pederal Reserve agent and secretary of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, before farmers attending farmers' week at the Montana State College at Bozeman. Mr. Mosher hits apon a truth that is not fally understood. Our foreign trade is still well above its volume before the forld war, and exports of our staple farm products were greater in 1982 than they were in the pariod immediately preceding the war. ... Forld markets are taking our sarplus agricultural products as freely as before the world war. But it will not take them at prices in keeping with present day costs of production and marketing. If the american farmers could bring their production costs down substantially to the prowar levels, they would be producing now at a profit and there would be little difficulty about finding markets for our surplus. High froight rates, high taxes, higher prices for the things the former must buy -- these ere the economic obstacles to a just return for the farmer's labor, industry and invested aspital. The high cost of marketing is another factor that must be considered. Eventually these costs will here to be adjusted to world markets and prices. They should so be adjusted now, and if they were so adjusted American fermers could take sere of themselves and oak no favors."

In an extensive review of the work of the Bureau of Agricultural Conomice, in Saccessful Ferning for Jebruary. E.B. Heid says: " ... Following the war the market went to pieces. To had overdone production, foreign outlets diminished and transportation was inadequate. Last year we produced a hundred million bushels more of potatoes than we needed, and next year from present indications it is saite likely there will be a surplus of both hoge and oattle. Apparently we have learned our leavon of production so well that with the least incentive we overproduce, and then, too. we are sometimes helped to do so by an over-indulging Providence. However, we are making progress and we have some calle a way along the line of developing two essentials, standardisation and inspection. The next step which is now occupying the attention of many oconomists, market specialists and farmers is the question of some way of belancing production with domand. it has already given birth to a whole brood of proposals many of which have no more economic basis than the question which the old philosophers used to discuss: 'llow many angels can stand on the point of a needle? Tet it is likely to bring about some solution which will be for the good of agriculture. ... " and all the

A Portland, Oro., dispatch to the press of February 5 says: "The Pacific Forthwest wool market is showing an opeard trend, a local packing plant having recently sold a liberal lot of matten wool at forty-three cents a pound. In convention at Spokane last week the contracting of wool before the shearing season begins, about April 1, was declared as anwise, and similar action was taken at the State meetings of flock-meeters."

2.8. Reid says in a lengthy article on the work of the bepartment of Agriculture in successful Atraing for Pebruary: "A prominent factor in getting information regarding what to produce, when to sell and how to market is the Market Howe Service of the Bureau of Markets (sic). In fact, it is the most valuable information made public by the bureau, and close study by individual farmers and farmers' organizations of the information which it is now issuing would go a long way toward improving the balance between production and consumption. But the ignorance of the educated classes is not sometimed to the farmers alone. It is a big problem with the expertment of Agriculture, even with its extensive news Service and army of employees to get this market information back to the farmers and further to get them to take advantage of it. The Market News Service in the Department of Agriculture is not morely market quotations but it is a combination of production and distribution facts. It gives both Sapply and demand information from the farms as well as from the trade centers. The Market News on farm projects requires men trained in agriculture to analyze the facts and prepare them for farmer's use. It is not sorely price reporting. Loans aggregating $224,301,400 and numbering 74,055 were made by the twelve Federal Farm Loan banks last year, Congress was informed February 8 in the annual report of the Farm Loan Board. "This very gratifying result," said the report, "but a feature much more fying to those charged with the administration of the bank system is it represents a complete response to the borrowing demands upon the and that it shows a steady and normal flow of business by months." loan bonds to the value of $278,600,000 were sold to the public during year, and the difference between this total and the amount of the fund was advanced through loans had been used to retire $70,150,000 bonds by the Treasury. This reduced the total of such bonds in the Treasury 112,885,000. Earnings of the banks for the year were placed at $5,692,-

  - Form Life for February says in an editorial: " ar own abe Lartin says. 'It's goin' to be interestin' t' esteb an' see bos th' dover ment gits th' farmer out o' debt by loamin' him more money.' That sounds like a wice repark. Then we done to compare agriculture with other indastries, however, we see that it is not everbarsered with debt. It is a seventy-billion-dollar basiness, with an annual tarnover of, say, twenty billions, and a present indebtedness of about six and a balf billions. as a whole, agriculture is carrying a bardon of debt egual to alout ton per cent. of its capital. Any other grout industry that was not bonded and mortgaged for more than ten per cent. of its value would believe itself to be highly solvent. and rightly so. Agriculture itself is bishly solvent. The object of the real personal credits measure -- and we suess that is what bothers abo -- is to furnish too farmer sufficient capital to carry on his business at a rate of interest which he can pay and still make a profit on his transactions. Opecial financial arrangements are rected for the farmer bushase his turnover is not a ninety-day affair. as is the case with the merchant. The development and inprovement of his land is a matter of years, and to buy and pay for a farm is a natter of helf a lifetime. Therefore, the egriculturist needs a long time mortgage at a low rate of interest.
  - rative 1. The Tall Street Journal for Jebraary 0 says in an editorial: "looperative marketing our perform an important Ring service in form aconomics when managed on business principles. But like any mercentile, banking or manufacturing business, it is acomed to failure, with loss to its stockholders, anless conducted on business principles. The Department of Agriculture is quoted as mathority for this statement of the obvious, because it has just published the results of a survey of 145 such organizations that have some out of business. ... That does the investigation teach? Inefficiency crases less than 20 per cent. of the fallures in moreintile matters, but in the farm cooperatives it is over 60. The percentage of failures from Lock of capitel seem about equal to ordinary business. But in improper extension of credits and doubtful honesty the cooperatives show a far greater ratio of fallures. verextersion of credity caused econt five times as many failures as in trade, and dishonesty nearly four times as only. These sta-tistics show that farrors' baying and celling compenies are subject to all the ricks incident to that of any moreontile pursuite, but in a far greater degree. So cooperative organination will run itself, now can success be assered simply because it is cooperative. It has have honest, or pable beginses menagement. The figures gathered by the department show that this fact has been greatly everlooked by the farmers. Two handred of the organisations failed because of lack of business. This mesos that when these its companies were formed, assuming honest, efficient management and sufficient capital for each, the chances of success stock one in favor to four against. It has the cause four to one against them the farmers are taking a big subling risk. The marketing and of agriculture is far different from the preducing. It includes merchandising, finance and transportation. Rightly conducted it may be beneficial to the producer. Then the farmer goes into such an organization he should exercise the same care that he would before becoming a partner in any business outside of his own."

rative ling 2. The National Stockmen and Parmer for February 3 mikes the following comment upon the unity Cooperative wohe to of St. Feul: " ... For it appears that the Limity Cooperative archange of At. baul was not a finencial auccess as it was then represented to be. In a recent report to its penbers the exchange records a deficit of 1728,000 insurred prior to July 31, 1921, ander the management of Ar. Anderson. it is soid that since new management has been operating the exchange it has shown a profit, and the stockholders are being asked to make good the deficit so that the exclure may continue to function, after selling each of its elevator properties as have shown losses in the past. It is no pleasure to call attention to the failure of any wellintended acoperative enterprise, and we hope that this one may get its affairs in shape to continue in business just so long as it is able to repter service to producers. Int this and other examples should teach us the importance of a sound foundation for cooperative enterprises and the necessity of competent business munnerent. Forh exemples should show as plac the window of waiting awhile before accepting apparent decembs as real success. It'll a cooperative enterprise has been tested as any other hastress enterprise must be tested, by paverse sommittees, so she li hesitate to pronounce it a encousa. ... duesaful ocoperation is all right, and it is the only kind that is right. Thould we not therefore and the same business sense in founding and conducting cooperative enterprises as we should use in starting and corrying on any other business' there is only one enswer to that question."

1. lowe domestend for Jamery 25 says in an editorial: "Sherman P. Monston, president of the Masouri Live Stock association, large feeder of beef estile and producer of home, recently wrote an article entitled. Froduction of Better Beef Will Increase Market Demand' at the request of the Institute of American Nest Pookers. In this Ar. Asuaton doclares that the most important cause of the decline in beef densamption in recent years is the large number of poor beef ontile that reach the market rowedays. Another chase is laid at the door of the consumer, who is rather indifferent in his demands for good beef. ... ar. Louston is right when he mays that the stockmen can produce good beef as obsoply as poor boof. In feet he wight have gone a stop ferther and stated that good beef was be produced sore economically than poor beef, because a well-bred steer will produce more pounds of beef from a given number of jounds of foed then will a scrab or a dairy bred animal. The dairy cow has her place in the schame of things and she will andoubtedly constitute a much greater percentage of our outtle 30 or 50 years hence than she does now. This are buston recognizes, and gives as his solution a material impresse in the number of the so-called dual purpose now, the aird that will not only produce good beef, but that will also yield a good milk flow. To doubt the soundness of this view. In our opinion the cow that will produce milk and butter fat the most economically is the one that will stay in the field. That will not be the dual purpose cow anless the dual purpose breeds become much more efficient producers of dairy products in the future than they are at the present."

The Indiana Farmer's Guide for February 10 says in an editorial: "The bills now in Congress meet the depants farzers have made for credit facilities. thather or not they will do all that is expected, if passed, is not cortain. There is this about it, the easier it is for the far are to get oredit, the more likely they are to go into debt. Too many are now in debt, and loaning them more coney may help them get out and easin it may not. Lest year the loans to formers from Government and private sources totaled .415 .-000,000. Of this aspart (200,000,000 was torrowed from redered form Loan banks and (215,000,000 from joint stock land tanks. Now much was borrowed from other sources we do not know, but it was quite a sum. Credit is a very helpful friend but it can be a powerful enemy that destroys shen mistrested. Farmers chould have adopuste credit facilities that they can use when needed, but the wise farmer will use his credit only when it is needed."

The Country Gentleman for February 10 says in an esitorial: "Despite the wonders of this somerous ago, no men has ever demonstrated his ability to grasp hisself by the sont of his trousers and lift hissolf into the air. robully no man even hopes to do it. for gravity constantly and tirelessly holds him down. But if you are speaking of economics instead of physics you will find folks who believe the feat is entirely possible. Last apring some of these boot-strep philosophers proposed to test their belief with the corn farmers. Here was the proposition: orn was plontiful and cheap. if there was less of it the price would surely be higher. Therefore, let the farmer raise bimealf out of the ruck of low prices by holding up production. ... But the experiment was spoiled by the noncooperation of the farmer. instead of putting in less corn he put in core. .he result of this contrariness on his part may be read from a recent crop report issued by Secretary sallege. Corn prices improved fifty-five per cent. during 1922. The servere of other farm crops was elso expanded, and the level of prices rose sufficiently to make the total value of all farm crops thirty-four per cent. greater than in the previous year, the Secretary reports. Thus the furmer profited from the savice of the crop reductionists by the simple expedient of disregerding it.

This, of course, was a blow to the investigator who desired to prove that economic apples full appeard, but his electicity caused him to hob up with a new scheme for the farmer to try. Let the farmeral meats be used for the medding; feast, he optimistically decided. Since corn prices went up instead of down, why not take advantage of the high prices and raise more corn, he said. This is really not a new conemo. It is the old game of chasing the mernet penalum; going in for a crop when the market is high, soing out when the market is low; being always a jump or two behind the pendulum; ceiling on the low market usually; finding dissiness and delt the chief reward of such back-and-forth sour-rying, contrasting with this wishy-mashy policy is the plan

The Bational Stockmen and Farmer (Fernaylvenia Sition) for February 10 says in an editorial: "Legislators propose two umendments to the Tennsylvenia dog law, which is the best dog low in the united States. One of these emendments provides that the proceeds of the tax on done, in excess of the amount necessary to enforce the law, shall be retarned to the counties in the same proportion as they have paid it. The other asendment proposes to use this excess to pay for the cattle which must be ascrificed in the compaign to eradicate toberculosis. If any amendment is to be made to the dog law the latter should be the one. Then the dow law was left to the countles to enforce there was no surplus because the local officials failed to enforce it. For that enforcement by the Lopertment of Agriculture has projected a surplus that asount should be devoted to the department's work, and money is lacking to pay cattle indemnities."

Ledger for February 6: The one objective of organised labor seems to be a high wage for an eight-hour day with time and a half for overtime. Be some man can believe that one-half the industrial world can run indefinitely on this advantage while the other half on the form works ten and twelve hours and at a lower rate per hour. The only conclusion is that some time or other and in one way or snother the two will come together. Wither the shopman, the railroad man and the ziner will work like the farmer or the farmers will no over to the organised industries, making food scarce and high, or the eight-hour day will prevail on the farm, with the same general result. One of these three courses is inevitable.

"see enybody soberly considered what the eight-hour day with time and a half for overtime at anion weres would neen on the farm and in the cost of food? The growing season is short, and neture has decreed that men must make hay shen the on chines, whetever fool notions he may hold about stardard days and overtime. ... This seams either two six-hour abifts or one twelve-hour day with time and a helf for the last four hours of the day. At a dollar on hour this means twelve to fourteen dollars a day per man; and the extra cost is edded not only to the laborer's mages but to the cost of maintaining teams and machinery, for a good part of this expense is for labor. Taking wheat alone as an example: It requires on the average an hour's work of man and term with the appropriate tools to produce a tembel of wheat, not counting the cost of twine, the summy outlay for threshing or the expense of restoring depleted fertility. For if this labor is gold for st a dollar an boar, it means a rate at least four times what has ever been paid form labor, except in the emergency of harvest in certain sections. As labor is directly half the cost of production of standard crops and indirectly considerably more, it is easy to see that the standardized eight-hour day will make the production of food from two to three times as expensive as ever before. Is the world ready to pay this price in order to maintain the fallacy of a flat standard day, and is labor willing to ran the risk of what it will mean in food:

"There are only too bases of evaluation of a day's work. One is that the worker puts into it and the other is what he produces. Insulated as the world will buy are pay for only that it really wents and will buy as cheaply as possible, it makes no difference that the man puts into the job. The only had so of commercial value is now such our he produce of that the world wants and will pay for. The only force can overcome this fundamental law, and that only for a limited time."

The Patienal Provisioner for February says: "Linua the war an interesting change in the percentages of slatch or by the larger and smaller packers has been taking place. The fact is that is the last few years the scaller packers have been increasing their percentage of slaushter. On the other hand the larger ones have been degreesing their percentage amendate, according to the records of the Paderal Peat Inspection Service. ... There is no nee view or conclusion edvanced regarding those figures. But they throw light on the supposed dominance by any larger packers. They indicate also that such of the slaughtering and packing besiness is done on a regional rather than a national basis, and a larger proportion than is generally thought."

Northwest remasterd for February 1 says: "Marketing is the big subject that farmers are stodying with reference to almost every product. Here in Minnesota, we have a good start on the serieting of grains, live stock and dairy products. the foundation is laid with our cooperative elevators. greeneries and live-stock shipping associations. With delry products and live stock, we have gone one step farther. ... but there is an impense problem to be surked out. It is the feeling of Porthwest paracend that perhaps the cooperative oreameries gradually will take up the hardling of poultry products. In come localities, they are doing it now. in others, the property stockholders have formed separate cooperative organizations for hamiling eggs and dressed poultry. These communities may be considered sort of lateratory experiments for the rest of the State. The actued watch is found best will grow end acreed over the state. The other plans will be dropped and this one, phichever it is, will ake heir places. Minnesote is destined to have a positry business that will rivel deirying. ... lut our big problem is marketing."

the Covernment could fix the price of wheat daring war times it can do so at any other time. wheat at present is selling for about (1.20 a bushel, which price is be sed upon world conditions. Not even the United States Government can arbitrarily raise the price to 11.75 or to any other level in prace time because it does not control the supply as it did during the wer. The price of wheat is fixed by the world's demand for our exportable surplus and it our not be expected that American consciers will pay more than the wheat can be sold for obroad. If this bill should pead, no would well very little of our surplus abroad but it would. in effect, to a subsidy for the farmers to be laken out of the pockets of the american consumers. Estamily if exect were fixed at any such price it would result in a greatly enlarged succly. It sould not follow that the Sovernment would be compelled to buy every bushel that the fireers offered and no the export decand sould be practically silled. it would weam that all that the farmers could sell route be what the american millers would buy and they would find thems-ives with this ensalable surplus remaining on the fares. for it would not take long before the elevators of the ee ntry would be sorged with the sheet and, although the fureers wight receive more money for what they did sell, they would sell less wheat and schoolly receive lass money. The United States would not be able to sell its wheat abroad until all other exporting countries had disposed of their eurpluses because they would easerly undersell this country."

A report resently issued by the United States Parend of Jeber Statistics on wholesele prices gives the course of prices for each year from 1890 to 1921 and by months from January, 1915, to December, 1921. The report differs from previous reports in showing articles under more than one classification instead of ander one arbitrary group. For example, food articles saigh reach the commaner in practically unobanged form are included under both farm products and food, although in computing the general index number for all commodities each articles have been goanted only and, so that there is no deplication in the first result. The number of commodities govered varied from 1921 in 1890 to 404 in 1921.

tection and Emption "Pedace production' is the suspension that most often is heard at the bankers' and businessmen's lumbeons as a paracel for the farmers' ills. A Minnesota county agent at a recent meeting of the sort answered several lone species in a single sentence: 'You get up a campaign to relace the normage of corn in the United States, and I'll assure you of one thing that you as a count on, there'll be as increase of his in at county.' That would be probably about the net result of any such attempt. The fact is, it son't work, and it len't the remedy, anyway, it is the same kind of communics to the last that lower prices to the gensumer and higher prices to the producer at the same time are impossible, an example of the fallecy of this reasoning exists right in Minnesota. - The Pederal Reserve Salletin for February says in its review of the month: "It has become clear that the farmer's needs for productive credit are not adequately provided for by existing machinery. A decade ago, when the reserve Act was being discussed, the general belief prevailed that six months was the maximum pariod for which the furner needed credit, except for the purchase of land. At present, partly as the result of the functioning of the Federal leserve system, credit for short-term our est operations not exceeding six months is, generally specking, available to the farmer. while the Federal Form Loan System and other existing evencies take care of the fermer's needs in purchasing land and permanent improvements. Levelopments of the last two or itree years have brought out the fact, however, that all tional facilities are required to finence the farmer's current lookterm operations lasting from ela monthe to three years. It is universally recognised that the farmers suffered severe acosomio reverses in 1920 and 1921, but it is not so generally anderstood that the economic sauses of the farmer's distress sore world-wide in scope and that enlarged credit facilities ere only one of many requisites for the improvement of the farmer's economic condition and security. ... A significant point in connection with credit for marketing crops is that a large part of it is not required by farmors themselves, but by dealers whose credit facilities is our commercial banking system are generally conceded to be adequate. It is the dealer she purchases the bulk of the farmer's product, carries it to market, and frequently holds it in storage before selling. To recapitalate, many farmers manage their business without the necessity of atilizing credit; a large part of the short-term credit recalrements of the farmer is taken care of by other agencies than banks: marketing oredit is escentially commercial credit rather than agricultural credit, and, although some adjustment in our oredit machinery in the interests of the farmer may be necessary, particularly with a view to reducing the most of aredit to the farmer, his short-term credit needs can be satisfied with a fair degree of adequacy by existing facilities."
- editorial: "Most critics of the general principle of an extension of or dit to farmers point out that a man dea not be helped out of debt by being able to horrow more and on easier torms. Diviously they would be right, but they do not know, or apparently do not care to know, that what the farmer wants is not a means for getting further into debt, but a means of horrowing at each times in such amounts and for such pariods as will allow him to conduct his business of planting producing and selling in an orderly manner, as every other division of manufacturing is conducted. How many times must it be pointed out that the farm -- each and every farm -- is a factory, complete in itself? The farmer must, not only be designer, mechanic and finisher of his product, but salesman as well. If you would force the manufacturers of any one line

The Journal of Commerce for February 10 seys in an editorial: "Almost at the came time took heavy steel products were being marked ap again, some by it per ion, a representative of the Jers Darens Jederstion was showing to his own estisfaction before a textile convention in lew York that the tariff had proven enother 'gold brick' for the farmer. The line of decenstration on the latter point was to establish in what degree the farmer's products might be recorded as having been raised in price, and ther of compating how much of this savance the farmer hed to pay to communer. In some lines, the comparison was very uniavorable, and, taking the whole range of farm products, left him with only an extremely small margin of not teriff gain. ... These are, of course, the effects of the tariff on general prices, wares, and the ability of the consumer to buy. The present system of duties makes living costs exponsive, honce results in asintaning ruges, and so adds indirectly to the cost of consumable goods as well as to the cost of the farmer's can production. As is a heavy loser. The situation is not simply a weighing of olass gains and losses. There is a far-recaning similicance In it that must not be overlooked from the broader economic standpoint. It is an unfortunate fact that, ever elmos the ermistice, there has been a tendency for groups of prices to move apart. Ferm products have been a good deal relayeed, and with the exception of wolton, which quappies a peculiar josttion, the resent trend of prices has operated to intensity and aggrevate the condition of teings. Agricultural values here moved downward and manafactured goods have tended to mwe upwird in price. ... If this state of things should continue along present linve it could not help lunding to a condition like that which we encountered in 1920-21. ... crises because so irregular and so leading in ecordination that the normal processes of predaction could not be continued. There was no market for asterials at the prices that existed. They sould not to used to work up into goods tesause the goods would not be cold. Furners and other classes in the commenty. either with fixed incomes or with imposes determined by the sele of products et competitive sorld prices, sere un ble to go on purchasing. needjastment was essential, but hen thus for been only partial. trice fixing combinations, and especial ly organizations of labor, have been able to resist the pressure to see extent and to go on charging the old acnopaly rates established during the latter days of the day or shortly thereefter. The outcome is to prevent real business recevery. to gentine or permonent restoration of prosperity can be expeated antil there is a better belance cetteen costs and prices in namerous lines of basiness. The first step toserd a more normal condition is doubtless the reduction of termtion and the curtailment of tariff dation to some resummis level. The next must be the readjustment of wages to produstiveness or vice verse."

Prices

Monra's Dairyman for February & says in an editorial: "The problem of making the farm pay is greater than that of maxing a manufacturing institution profitable. The furner does not control as many factors in his business as does the manufacturer. He can not remiste the weather, he can not stop the production of a partain commodity as quickly as the manaisetarer. Insect pasts and fingus diseases are often beyond his costrol and in many other says he does not have the same control over his basiness as the usuafacturer. There is, however. a similarity between the farmer and the manufacturer. - ach must do certain things is order to make his business a success. The farmer, like the unnufacturer, must determine what commodities he can preduce that will have a demand and are the most likely to return a profit. The price of fare commodities caused the fermer, as well on the Manufacturer, to pulma from the production of one commodity to the predaction of another. for example. If the price of hors is high an increased production immediately follows. To are experiencing in the unity industry an increase in production due to the relatively higher price of dairy products to the prices of other farm commodities. ... The prices of Three commodities to a comaiderable extent determine what erops will be increased or decreased. The manufacturer can to a great extent cortrol production, while the season is a tremendous factor in resulating the quantity of farm products produced. The farmer in planning what arops to grow takes into consideration prices, the autotability of the land for growing the grops, and whether he is in position to produce them, etc. when it is determined by the former what group to grow or by the manufacturer as to the products he will produce, there must be established in both instances efficiency in production. This is the largest fuotor in the appears of either the manufacturer or the fermer!

The ball Street Journal for Johnsony 9 says in an editorial on the report of director General of hailroads wate: " ... as the present Lirector General points out, meny rellroad olding have been substantially out down before and nottlement. That is not in any senso evidence that they were overstated originally, because coaling with the Covernment is never done on even terms. You can not enforce collection against the United States. You can collect a judgment, Obtained by years of litigation in the Court of Claims, if and when Congress is willing to vote an appropriation for that purpose. It is not parprising that the carriers have been willing to accept what they could get in preference to chasing rainbows. There is, of course, no use in crying over spilt milk. But it will be worth while to beer in mind that the postwer readjustments were vantly more difficult for the railroads by the failure of the deilroad administration, during the second year of Federal control, to suke rates cover the cost of the service and the authoquent increasable delay in paying carriers money due them on Fodoral control and the six menths and anty accounts. They desperately needed it to make their properties scale fit for service and even for day to day working copital. The Well Street Journal for February 10 says: "Might million Hussians are on the verge of starvation, and their lives cen be gaved only by contributions of food from other countries. This is the gist of the report of our Jewalssion on Runsien Relief. It is quoted here as the irrefutable answer to the Boriet olsies of an exportable surplus of whost and other grains. Lembers of the commission traveled sout 9.000 miles and made careful investigation. They found that only helf the normal area sea seeded in 1927; there was another severo drought in the provinces which had suffered in 1921, and the remaining horses have been billed for food. The commission else says in regard to the fature: 'It is inpossible to reise crops when the peasents have to plow by bend, or with some or miserable excistons of horses, as they are now doing. There is no doubt that the Derist is attempting to export some grain, but it is not from an exportable surplus, because there is some mome grain is still being reised in Hussis. Oc ton sloo is still reised there --50.000 belos last year occurred with the prover average of 1.000.000. A grain tax is levied by this so-called government, and from the proceeds of this it sight make the foolish sectore of exporting. Int every bushel taken in this may would still further weaken the Aussian position. It can be truly said of Jussian agriculture that only 'the soil rumine in place.' It lacks the implements and motive power for production. It probably lacks much of its former will to produce, because of the beary tax on production. nomic The national banking system has splendidly withation stood the general deflation and liquidation, which was an inevitable aftermath of the world-wide credit expansion and inflation incident to financing the World , and a decided improvement in the economic conditions in every section he country has been effected, according to the annual report of the troller of the Currency, submitted in Congress and made rublic yestercovering the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922. The Comptroller states the most difficult banking situations which confront his office are so areas which have suffered agriculturally by reason of drought, of spicious conditions in the live-stock industry, of inadequate transtation to move products, or of other circumstances which have worked to injury of farming communities. Attention is called to the fact, however, the areas which have thus been unfortunate constitute comparatively a Il part of the country, while the outlook for a continuing improvement the agricultural situation, based on increased demand for farmers' prod-, both at home and abroad, and a consequent improvement in prices, finds diste reflection in a more cheerful banking prospect. Mr. Crissinger is attention to the fact that for a series of years this country has oved an utterly unprecedented favorable balance of trade with the rest be world, owing to war conditions, but more recently the country has rapidly returning to a more normal relationship of imports to exports, suggests the probability that in no very distant future it will be essary for this country to export gold. (Press, Feb. 13.)

Homes Mrs. James Fisher, president of the United Farm Women (of Canada), at the recent convention at linnipeg Canada of the United Farmers of Manitoba, said in her report, based on a survey of 307 farm homes in Manitoba: "Only of the 307 homes had baths. One very pleasing condition, however, was taled, namely, the size of the homes, seven rooms being the average. Only of the 307 women have domestic help all the year. Twenty-five per cent of homes have power which does not extend, except in four cases, beyond the hing, while a goodly number have the old reliable back-breaking wash-

Prof. E. G. Nourse, formerly of loss state acringltoral College, now with the institute of Loononies of the Ternezie Institutionel asshington, soid in a recent address before the lonta Club of Sashington: "American agricultural conditions are entirely different from the expicultural conditions of all other countries in the sorld, and the nited states has attained a higher standard of living for rural dwellers than has ever been attained anywhere else at pry time. Professor Mourae spoke principally on the problems of hering faraing recognized as an industry, to be placed on the same level with the steel and coal industries, and of the development of systematic progress is seriouliarel lines and close cooperation between the trained appelaist and the individual producer. He farther savousted the establishment of a trade body, an exricultural chamber of commerce for each locality to handle similar problems of production, sale and consumers' interests. (Fress. The Pastoral Review (Adstralia and New Sealand) for December says in an editorial: "Now that a practical board has been appointed to improve the conditions of our meat export trade. It is to be hoped something basinesslike will be done. It is no use spanding a lot of money advertising Australian beef until we mend our ways, and see that all we send is of a quality fit to justify our advertising. .veryone should know the position; we have beef second to none in the world, but only a limited quantity of it. That beef will always have a good sale if properly marketed. but what do we do even with this high quality beaf? we treat it aboutnably on its way to the most works, and probably send it neey too old for the fastidious British tests. is here est anything given to us, because we can not help it. is sust take it or leave it, but in London it is different, as there we have to compete with the magnificent chilled and frosen beef from Argentine, Traguey, and Joneda. Bruguey, a dereford country, is not mentioned in australia, but megnificent chilled beef, and large quantities of it, go recularly to Imithfield. It is nonsense to make exceping assertions about our beef being no different to inglish or bouth american, and only people who don't went to believe otherwise make much misleading statements. It is cortainly not the say to bring about a better state of effairs. First insist on dehorning sherever practicable, and bring rall-cays and railway management up to date, install dissipline and pusishment. Insist on sater at tracking yards, showers every loo alles in summer, and enforce proper killing and loading. The facilie Dairy Sevies for tebruary 1 cays in an editorial: "The narriwan Entional bank, one of the big banking institutions of New York, registered a protest when it came to transmitting some three million dollars to For lealand for a lot of butter that la on the sun from that country to Dea York. It is a big lot of money and the benk wonders why our dairymon are not producing enough botter for our population so as to keep this money at home. It is unfortunate that those sillions are not going to our dsirymen who are in such dire need of it, but if it helps to enlighten this and other big metropolitan banking conoerno as to the financial situation that confronts the farmers of the country these millions will not be altogether lost. ... For only is capital to expend the dairy besiness not evallable, but credit is equally lacking, ask a country benker of a country perchant for credit and this fact will force itself upon you. That is true of outital is true of labor. It is flowing in a resistless current from rural to ortan industries. Insofur as the dairymen of the country are concerned, it is fortunate rather than anfortunate that it is necessary to import butter. for it is infinitely better to be short on production than to overreach the assund. Agriculturally, nearly every other line is everdone. It is ourplas production that is the real cause for worry. It is better that we have to cake good on a shortage of butter by importing then to have to find markets for a surplus. To if bankers are verrying about a shortage of batter they should get little sympathy from producers."

There are several reasons for the increase in consumption of delry products, most important of which are the estentific researches which demonstrate the absolute necessity of delry products for growth and maintenance of health in old as well as young, and that there is no substitute for them. The Compercial and Timencial Chronicle for Intrasty 13 says in an editorial: That this country is saffering from a shortage of common or ordinary labor and is assessed by a further shortege is no new fact, but one which large produe ing businesses have been recognizing and deploying. The publisher of 'Rational industries,' reted as an official organ of the National Association of Lanafesterers, sent out a sportionneire on the subject to the leading industries, and its February issue contains a symposium of the view of about fifty industrialists. ... That shall we do about our immigration?' was the question saked, and no attempt was mede to limit or sould the answers. The changes suggested were, mainly: That the admitted quota should have the object of attaining net immigration, instead of the present method, which often produces shortage; that there should be a centralized baress or commission, whereby all matters relating to the subject may have prompt and practical hardling; that on satisfactory evidence of a sportage in any industry the neoretary of Labor should be authorized to take measures for filling it; that a scientific selection and la be made by United States officers on the other side of the ocean, so as to stop at points of enterkation those who do not qualify: that a more definite policy in registration and distribution should be adopted; that a more intelligent and humane method of receiving immigrants should be used; that a broader educational method is needed, 'one that should take the immigrant from the time of entry and guide him properly for his naturalization'; lastly, 'abolition of the literacy test.' These segrentions do not seem to lack in stringency. The least valuable is the last but one -- that for guiding the newcomer towards American citizenship; on the other hand, one of the least is the proposed abolition of the literacy test upon entry."

The Price Current-Grain Reporter for Labruary 7 acys in an editorial: "It is not overlooked by the eastern farmer ricalt are that the devices to extend oredit to western farmers to enable them to withhold their products from the market 'until the price is right,' falls heavily upon the eastern farmer sho is a 'factory farmer,' using western grain and feed as his raw materials. The popertment of ericulture's eye is centered on the sect, principally on the one-orep fermer of the sheat country, who is most often in trouble. The eastern furmer is handlorpped by his poorer soil, siatance from primary markets, and his need for feedstuffs he can not grow at home. ... For every artificial push to advance prices in the West does make the lot of the eastern deirymen and positry farmer more difficult, since they must compete against similar products from the lest as well as boy rew feeds from his competitors. It is our judgment that of all the work of the scientific bureaus of the Department of Agriculture in this State none has rendered better service nor commanded wider or more sincere popular appreciation than the Weather Bureea, and none, although its function has always been to scrape the sky, has kept its footing more conestentionally upon the solid earth of scientific demonstration. Of course, there was very little of this to attra upon at first, but it was characteristic of the early observers that when they had to step over the edge of it, they planted their brogens on common sense and not on vagaries. ... Upeaking of the advancement of monther-study to feller knowledge. desper understanding and restly wider observation to minister to both, it is interesting to note that in his last report to the Secretary of Agriculture, the Chief of the souther Eurebu. The New York Times Book Review for February 11 contains a lengthy article by A.M. Forterfield on "The Relactance of the American Novel to Enter the Barn." In this the author says: " ne of the insonvenient addition of american literatare is its lask of novels depisting life on the ferm. Though peopled only by transients, the seven seas have received exemplary attention from our epic writers. The city has been abundantly exploited by, and the small town has certainly dome into its own with, creative writers of all three donominations. But with precisely one-half of our population living out in the country, the number of american farm novels is negligible. it is about seven, and this despite the fact that there are approximately seven million farms. which among at least thirty million farmers, in the inited States. ... The American farm needs a creative publicity agent who will do for or to it what ar. Linclair Leais has done for the small town."

Aton Goods

The cotton goods manufacturers of the Inited States are showing a sarked seconds in their fight to retain the held upon world markets which they gained during the war, according to a servey of the trade by the Sational City Sank. Of the dozen great industries which are seezing world trade, that appertaining to cotton goods shows a larger percentage of gain in the exports of 1922 than any other. The total value of cotton manufactures exported in the ten months ending with October. 1922, is (115.600.000, against 198.300.-000) in the same menths of last year, while most of the other manufacturing industries show declines in the value of 1922 exports." Fow York Produce Review and american Crossery for Pebruary 7 mays in an editorial: "The movement to operainate the sotivities of various dairy organizations existing for specific purposes, for which initial steps were taken at a notable conference held in Chicago early in January chould become of west importance to the industry in all of its branches. ... It is not to be supposed, it is doubtless not intended, that all the major dairy organisations can be brought together as one body. The industry is so vant, so fer reaching in its phases of production, menufacture, distribution, and in its important relations to the public health and welfare, that it embraces a number of specialized fields of endeavor for specific ends, each of which, in the general interest, gives rise to the need of particular orsamination and apocialized public service. Dat hen questions, arise concerning matters of universal concern to the industry whether from a need of initiating progressive action or of combatting propositions decaded to be misconceived and detrimontal, complete unity of purpose and coordination of effort is assontial and the lack of it becomes a serious handicup. and it should not be difficult to stain. A.R. March says in an extensive review of the labor citaction and its connection with production, in The conomic World for February 10: "It has already been demonstrated by practical experience in a senner exply convincing to compatent stadents of the statistics of production that the actual offect of the reduction of the working day in industry in moneral from ten hours to eight hours is at least a proportionste dearense in the quantity of goods predaced. There is not a single important industrial country in the world in which the eight-hour working day in industry has become the scoopted rule since the war. In place of a ten-hour working day obtaining before the war, the available statistics of whose present-day production of goods in industry as a whole do not show that the gross quantity of industrial goods produeed is at least 20 per cent amillar than it was in the preser days. ... It is a clear condition procedent of the maintenance of the existing 'standard of living' of industrial vorkers under the new working program that the earicultural producers of the sorld should not scopt the oast system, reducing their bours of labor and tooir production also by 20 per cent. As everybody knows, a nice belance had been struck before the mar between the world's annual aunily of foodstaffs and other agricultural protects, on the one hand, and the annual requirements of the world's non-agricultural population, especially the industrial versers, or the other. so nice was this balance that it was economically certain that a continging dimination of the annual supply of egricultural products by as such as 10 per sent -- or even in a much smaller proportion than this -- must insvitably result in the bitterest hardships for when duellers of all classes, but especially for the industrial working class. the carting down of the supply of foodstuffs and agricultural raw materials available for the consumption of the arban population everywhere, if ourried to any such extent as 20 per cent, could mean only semi-starvation and seminakedness for vest pushers of the sorkers in insastry. It is not to be supposed that even the most functionly advocates of the eight-hour day in industry have over contemplated the possibility of any much altimate effect of their so-called reform as this. In truth, they have tacitly assumed throughout that the change they were seeking in the conditions of industrial production would be attended by no similar change in the conditions of agricultural production; though the total volume of industrial production was to be reduced by 20 per cent, the farmers of the world would of course po on producing the old los per cent of grain, ment, milt and butter, action, wool, etc., and would contentedly exchange this 100 per cent of their traditional prometion for the now do per sent of the traditional insastrial production. Though here and there a voice was raised to question the accuracy of this reasoning. the confident answer was ande that the economic position of the Tarmers is such that they can not help themselves in such a metter: they are composing by the nature of the circumstances in which they find themselves to produce as buch as they can, irrespective of what they are going to get in exchange for tasir products from the other classes in seciety. ... This is, of course, a pleasing ploture for the point of view of the orban and industrial population in all countries. Considerable doubts so to its reliability as representing a permanent and dopendable order of thinge, however, are beginning to be entertained by alose stadents of what is notually bappening in the domain of serioultural production throughout the world as a whole. Buch students can already see very elearly test the ciaht-hour working day in industry is not to be without its reactions of a fur-reaching kind in agriculture. ... ample evidence is already available, for instance, to sonvince competent observers that the egricultural producers of all countries can not be counted upon to go on supplying the world's urban and industrial population with 100 per went of the traditional quantities of ferm products when the capply of industrial products offered in exchange therefor is only 80 per cent of what it formerly was. By a solittude of expedients the fareers of the world are so a matter of fact even now accommodation the scale of their production to the new scale of industrial production recessitated by the eightboar working day in incustry. And we may well believe that before the process of readjustment is completed none superficially very impressive social theories will present a desidealy battered and lisheveled appearance."

Maction Ties requirements of farmers are closely related to the noverent of agricultural prices. In the cose hand, higher prices cult for larger losses in order to produce and carket the same quantity of orage, while, on the other hand, price declines, and set as occurred in 1921, make it impossible for cany farmers to liquidate their losse by the cale of their crops and result in frozen aredits and in a consequent increase of the total volume of outstanding loans. Price stability is therefore greatly to be desired in the interests of the farmer, among other resears, because it would make it easier to determine and provide for his finencial requirements. and yet it to a well-known fact that privat of farm products are subject to more violent flautestions than prices of most other classes of commodities, and that these ups and cours cause soute distress to farmers. here are several ressors for this phenomenon, one of which is that farms produce largely rea materials, and experience shows that prices of res water lele flactaate more sidely toon those of managestared articles. the reason is that manufacturers of stable finished products can reduce or discontinue production and out off purchases of rev materials when business is slow, while their unstomore, the wholesaler, the rotailer, and the consumer, can not restrict their purchases of necessities of life as promptly or so drastically. ... The volume of the farmer's production is much lead subject to control than the volume of manufactures. Jarm production in inclastic. in most usees the fermer raises crops on his entire tillable lend; his labor sapply consists chiefly of his family, and he is not in a position materially to reduce his outley for labor. The faracr is not in a position to tall in sevence whether the dealine in price will be sufficient to deprive him of the proceeds of the additional labor expended in relains a larger orop. And yet the total value of a large orop is often less than the total value of a short crop, as prices senerally dealine more then in proportion to the increase in the supply. hat the farmer's greatest sircle bandloop is lack of supperstion and the resulting scarcity of market is forestion and bargaining strength. Leven million farmers cuting individually can not create a morket, but are almost entirely at the mercy of economic forces beyond their control. It is in cooperation resulting in better planned production and pere systemetic carreting based on wider information that lies the chief remedy for the economic insecurity of the farmer."

Referring to the drop in preferred stock of the our Stock Illinois Armour company from a close of 93 on Tuesday to 86, reallying to 90, C.B. Evens, Chicago correspondent the Philadelphia Leager, says to-day: "The condition of the Armour interto has been well known to bankers and others in this city for many months, it may be summarized by the statement: Too much wealth represented by little spot cash. But it is declared to-day, on authority better than been extinguished. ... The question was asked whether the announced purto buy Morris & Co. was not given out as a camouflage of disturbed contions in the Armour house. No, it was not. Morris & Co. is a bargain at price at which it is soon to be taken over. The Delaware organization Armour & Co., however, was formed in part as a basis for the Morris transtion. The legal reason is in the fact that, whatever agreement there may be lesses of stocks have equal rights in the matter of voting, while under lawere law the voting power may be lodged entirely in common stockholders."

The New York Commercial for February 13 says in an editorial: "Thatver criticisms, just or anjust, may have been leveled in the past egainst the activities of the American Cotton Association, there can be nothing but the heartiest commendation for the national campaign it has andertaken for boll weevil control. ... it is so important that it should have engaged the attention of Congress to the end that whetever sum is necessary should have been voted forthwith to combat the evil. if, for example, congress had voted to divert the $360,000 which it wanted to spend upon free seeds toward the fund for fighting boll esevil there would not have been a word reised in protest. ... There is no reason why the weevil can not be exterminated. Science has been able to cope with more buffling problems, such as the elimination of the melaria and relicafever bearing mosquite as a proliminary to the construction of the Panama Canal and in Cuba. The American Cotton Assodistion has engaged the services of Dr. Willer Heese Autohison to andertake the campaign. 'All inventions, all solutions of problems,' he says, 'are but intelligent aggrega-tions of therefore well-known theories, practices and wa-terials. The component parts of a phonograph existed in the Gerden of Eden -- a fig-leaf diaphram, a pointed stick scriber and a clay plate record, all of which properly combined will record and reproduce sound. After the holl weevil. which has been with as since 1892, is solved, we will marvol at the simplicity of the instrumentalities employed. Such being the case, the problem requires but a proper filter and efficient mixer to combine these things which the filter passes through.' In other words, science must be given the tools to work with and in the course of time it will concaer the pest. The world needs cotton: it will need it even more pext year than it does now. It is no lenger a question of the South raining too much cotton; it is whether it can raise enough. It is not alone that the prosperity of the South is involved in having eotton to sell, but that the entire community will be called upon to face a serious increase in living costs, due to the shortage of cotton goods. The control of the boll we will is a matter of national and international interest."

Operative Familiations The Oklahoma Sarmer-Stockman for February 10 says in an editorial: "The Department of Agriculture looked into the affairs of 497 farmers' cooperative associations that have failed since 1915. ... The results of this sarvey serve to emphasize ones the fact that cooperative associations are subject to the same laws of business and economics as are ordinary lines of business. A survey of the same masher of failures of commercial firms would reveal the same resuses for failure and probably in about the same proportion."

The American Fertilizer for February 10 says: "The quiet market for fertilizer paterials that set in early in the year continues without interruption. Found lot sales are difficult to trace, with most transactions over the past few weeks confined to limited quantities of raw material. Then it is considered that we are in the midst of the season the situation is generally considered to be more er less disappointing. On the other hand, this seakness that is so prosounced on the surface of the market does not seem to have real influence, so far as price declines are concerned, which is considered one good feature."

The Estional Provisioner for February 10 says in an editorial: "There is a great deal of interest being shown these days in the matter of actual mest consumption. Packers and others went to know the facts. But the fects are hard to establish. And even with the facts two recent estimates very somewhat in their interpretation of them. For example. a short time ago the Foodstuffs Jivision of the U.S. Department of Commerce stated that for the past seven y are the total consemption of most and the per capita consumption of weat had shown an upward trend. Since then an independent estimate made by The National Livestock and Meat Board, in onelyzing the official figures of consumption of meet, is to the effect that consumption of most is not increasing. Hovever, the statement conveded that the rate of decrease seems to here been checked somewhat. The fundamental matter in all this is not the assetion as to whether the consumption of meat has increased for the last year or two. The vital importance lies in the permanent trend of mest consumption. ... The situation sooms to be this: That whether the consumption has actually decreased or increased in the last year or so, the per capita consumption of meat from the point of view of the packing industry leaves such to be desired. The fine efforts that have been made by the most industry with the institute of American West Packers, together with the National Association of Mest Jounuils and local mest councils, have done a great deal for the cause of cost. But if efforts to premote and maintain a correct understanding of the food value of most are slackened, even momentarily, much ground can be lost quickly that use be recovered only with great difficulty."

The Frairie Farmer for February 10 says in an editorial: "The galokness with which we can flood the market to our own disadventage has been shown during the past month in the Chicago dairy district. You can travel all day through the district without finding a farmer who will admit that (2.50 a hundred pays him for the cost of producing milk. Yet no seener was the January price fixed at $2.60 than nearly overyone began to buy feed and cows. Food dealers sold more feed in a few days then they had in months before. Cows were fed for the largest possible production. and the demand for additional cowe forced the price up out of sight. Chicago was flooded with milk, and if the farmers' merketing company were out of the may the market would speedily go to pieces. Then a small advance in price stimelates production like that, no woncer the public suiles and crosses its fingers when we complain that we are producing at a less! "

ariting from Atlanta, Ga., to Commerce and Jinanus for February 14. Theo. H. Price says: "on my way through the South Atlantic States to the Plasissippi Valley and the siddle lest, I have had opportunity to interview many men of large affeirs. A feeling of optimism is general. In the cotton states the cheerfulness is of course partially due to the good prices at which outton is selling, but it also reflects a belief in the general prosperity of the country and the confident hope that business will not soon again be run through the wringer of deflation, in which it was so painfully someozed two years ago. ... if the farmer it may be said that his position is more commanding than at any time proviously in the history of the country. Through his representation in Congress and in the State Legislature he has become able to insist upon simost anything that the Government can give him and through him cooperative marketing organizations he has made great progress in solving his economic problems. This is well. and provided he does not abuse the new found power of which be is becoming conscious the fermer's self-contidence will probably go a long way to insuring the parmanence of the prosperity that is now to be observed. This self-confidence as it spreads is pervading all alseses and one of ite effects in the South has been to check the negro signation of which so each has recently been said in the newspapers. In this section, at least, there is work at rood wages for everyone who is industrious and the negro is not disposed to leave the bouth when he can make a good living there."

The Country Centleman for Jebruary 17 says in an editorial: "There is something about the Hed River Valley of Linnesota and Forth imbota that tempts den to try things on a bis scale. 'erhaps it is the far sweep of the harizons, perhaps the emasing richness of the soil. The valley is still a young expire of wheat, despite recent appleadant experiences with that crop. Lest sesson its poteto crop sot clear out of hand; in a bad year, too, when of re were subject and prices tantling. Losses on potatoes riviled those on wheat in its sorst years. But in belancing its books for the past year the Red River Talley has run aurous suce onexpectedly cheering items -- little things, it is true, but pointing to bla facts. In Grafton, Borth Dakots, (45,000 was prid to formers for poultry in the space of two weeks. Here than :100.000 sorth of poultry and eggs was marketed through one firm in Crookson, Linnesots, during 1922. at arryle, Linnesots, 06,000 worth of positry was sent to seriet in a simple day. An observer who spent a week in the valley was told by many farmors that positry showed the largest persentage of profit of any farm enterprise. Lext to it was dairying. The returns from dairy coss almost invariably aboved a profit. Hens and tarkeys end cows don't contribute such to the spectacular side of farming, to which the Led liver Valley is rather secustomed. But they do have a say of contributing to steady profits. That is why there will be more of them in the valley this year. It is getting a better focus on the business of furming."

Theo. H. Frice says in Commerce and Finence for Februory 14: "Journeying bither (Montgogery. Als., ) through the Carolines and Georgia I have talked with many cotton men. But few of them expect any substantial increase in screene this upring, withough most of them are a reed that the land planted will be more intensively cultivated, that more fertilizer will be used and that a vigorous and intelligent effort will be made to fight the boll weevil not only with poison but by early plenting and picking. From this it is not to be inferred that there is any justification for the premature predictions of a largely increased production that ere being made by some or that those who are bolding the unsold remeat of last year's crop are at all disturbed in their belief that it can be sold at thirty cents or care between now and next July. A very large portion of the cotton thus held is controlled by the cooperative marketing associations that have become such important factors in the various cotton states and the moral inflaence they exert indirectly es well as directly is something of a revelation to those who had been steptical of their sancess and power. It is against their policy to sell in moments of depression or some then an egreed proportion of their heldings in each worth and the result is that shen they withdraw from the market their exemple is so generally followed that there is but little ootton for sale in any quarter. For this reason it seems on-likely that there will be any important reaction in the future market unless the prospect of an increased production next season should become so definite that it encouraged speculetive short selling on a large scale. ... Julling some each resolution of the present uncutiafectory cituation west of the cotton nor held in the boath will be for sale when and if the carket recohes thirty wents a pound and it will be difficult to reestablish speculative confidence in still higher prices."

great deal of that time in the neighborhood of wanturg, and who see a witness of what ment on, the t the Germans insisted apon railary charges being lowered, whether they applied to milk, regetables, pointoes, fruit, or any other produce of the earth. No one could contradict that statement, but some seem to think a sufficient answer to be that the railways were nationalized and therefore not run at a profit. it matters nothing to our argument whether they were nationalized or not. A great deal of the progress that has to be laid to the credit of German agriculture was subjected during the greet depression, and it could not have taken place but for the cooperation of the railseys. The railsey rates in the 'eighties and 'mineties of last century were the same obstacle to the revival of agriculture that they are to-day; and if the difference between the cost of caltivation and the cost to the consumer is to be reduced, then the first step is a reduction of the railway rates. Now to achieve it is enother metter, but some of the wisest men whom we have consulted suggest that the better plan would be for the (British) Covernment to summon a conference of all who represent agriculture, landlords and tements, laborers, smallholders and elletment-holders, with representatives of every industry connected with them. Then they could lay down as the object of the gethering the lowering of the agricultural rates for farm produce, for the verriege of food, indeed, of all kinds." (Country Life, (London) feb. 3.)

Ragene Lavanport says in an article in The Milistelphia ledger for February 15: " ... The arguments designed to show that the maximum efficiency of a man is had through eight hours of labor forget to reckon with the fact that few kinds of exployment are continuous throughout the year, so that long periods of idleness or semi-idleness siford plenty of time for rest, regrestion and self-improvement. ... Experience shows, too, that a man does not need one-third of his tire for self-gratification, nor can be afford to take that much time from his business and expect to prosper. The writer never knew or heard of any successful basiness wen or farm r who worked only eight hours per day. Low about the physician, the teacher, the farmer, the houseke per and the mother? It is only in the industrial world that this fully of the eighthour day can be made to work, and even there it is used more as a blais for roukoning overtime than as mousuring the length of the socual working day. sarming, housekeeping. medicine, narsing, teaching and the vest mass of human effort can not be brought under the eight-hour plus except at a cost that will check civilization and make manifest the folly of the scheme. ... se can all have the eight-hour day -- at a price, but the price will be either decedence for everybody or grinding toil and anxiety for those not in position to exact an advantage. The greatest fallacy of all labor fellucies is that a mun is at his best when he works only onethird of the time, and that at a very moderate page. . he fast is, that a man, like any other mechine, is at his bost when he does fall sork -- not excessive -- and operates at a proper rate of speed. ... There is a psychology in the labor problem that needs to be cultivated."

The Journal of Commerce for February 15 says in an editorial: "In reporting favorably upon the so-called looding bill providing a som of 1500,000.000 from the public purse for the purpose of relaing the price of wheat to 175 and holding it there for a period of three years the Sem te Agricultural Consittee has gone definitely on record as favoring a direct and hoge subsidy to the wheat grower. That is the truth in a nutshell. There is no other way to view the measure. Theat is now bringing much less than that Tisure and there is nothing in the situation to lead to the belief that conditions of supply and desend would raise it to that level in the near fature. Agrerians in Con ross know this as well as enyone else, and it is this fact, no doubt, that accounts for the desire to force the texpaper to come to the sid of the grover. There is, as for as can be observed at the present time. little or no chance that such a measure will actually be enseted into law, not at the present sension at any rate. But the nere fact that such an absord bill as this should be sanctioned by a committee of the cenate is not without significance, and should not escape the attention of the general public. How far will those ever-recurring subsidy notions go before we have a definite assauring to their essential ansoundness and danger? The doctrine that this Mation can not prosper except as the former flourishes and that, therefore, we must create an artificial prosperity in the raral districts by sandry expedients, such as the one here under discussion, has permeated our thinking to s greater degree and is probably having more influence upon our comomic life than is generally realized. The time has come for more cureful thought on this subject than is now oomson."

The exports are not expected to exceed 20,000,000 bashels. The proceeds from the shipments, according to Covernment statements, are to be devoted to the purchase of agricultural implements and to supply other needs of the pessents to whom the grain belongs. The Severnment recently informed the American relief administration that it was ready to carry out its procise to feed approximately 3,000,000 adults in the American eres. mere statistical service. We do not believe the demand can be net with anything less than a spootal department, and then we believe this special department aust be placed in the hunds of a losder of great vigor and force who has had years of actual experience in selling in a big way what farmers grow, who knows how and, above all, who is not airnid to roll up his sleeves, get efter the job itself and do scrething about it. The ablest marketing export in Amerion would have his hands full and then some if he made the Hareen of Markets the powerful factor it should and can be in finding answers to the many and difficult problems of setting what the furser grows over to the consumer in a manner that would profit both most. And yet the farrers and consumers have a right to such service or to know why it is not fortheening since it is the taxes that pay the bills. for, if Sashington is going to have nothing more than a more statistical service, then it should be supported accordingly and should be relieved of all supervisory power of shatever nature. ... picultural punisations The Breeder's Gasette for February 15 says in an editorial: "A correspondent who has spent most of his time during the past five years 'sorking with and fighting for farm organisations' writes that the chief hindrances to progress in many cases have been 'the ansolicited aid of private interests, which used and still are trying to use these organisations for their own selfish purposes.' He aliades without mentioning mases to 'those farm journal publishers who have made circulation and political capital out of the misfortunes of farmers.' Happily organized farmers have got rid of the self-seekers who talked loadly and long, and promised everything a few years ago. They have also lasrned that a 'friend' with an axe to grind is not an asset but a liability. Organized agriculture has its eye open for camouflaged snakes in the grass."

Prof. S.F. Cophert, of Seahington University, says in an article in The Journal of Commerce for February 16: "Contrary to the popular belief and prevalent statements from muny farmers and their friends the essential diffioulty in the agricultural aftuation is not one of credit. Few, if any industrial classes, have had more abundant oredit than the fermer. In trath, he has at times had too much of it. It would, for example, have been a lasting bonefit to the farmer if, during the recent period of high prises, bankers and others had not loaned so liberally to those who parchased land at $400 and 1600 an acre or rented land from $10 to $20 en nore. Beither the sale nor the rental value of land even at the then high provailing prices for farm crops warranted any such credit. It may be true that in some cases, and particularly in some sections of the country, the farmer is forced to pay too high interost rates and that by improved eredit and banking organisetions and farmers' associations funds out be accured at a lower cost. But the late and present difficulty of the farmer is one of prices and not of credit, that is, as compared with the general price level, the price of form products fell faster and still continues on a lower level than the prices of the goods which the farmer sunt buy. This maladjustment between agricultural prices and other prices can not be corrected by the grant of any amount of oredit to the farmer. delief can come only from one or more of several sources. First, the prices of other soundities may decrease in comparison with the price of exploitaral commodities. Second, fare prices due to (a) increased domand, aspecially from surope for food products, (b) the farmer may reduce his coats of production by lower wages, improved methods, such as scientific agriculture, further use of machinery or by reduced costs of surfeting. ... Une of the most far-reaching plans for alding the farmer and one which has been advocated by responsible individuals is that which would have the Covernment 'stabilize the exricaltarel industry' and guarantee the price of the leading arricultural crops, shich in its mildest form would be a quaranteed minimum price. It is well to understand what whoh a program involves. Stabilizing the industry would mean the adjustment of production to consumption. Such a plan is not only impossible on parely practical grounds but it has little to recommend it in theory. Assuming that fairly accorate statistics of the consumption of agricultural commodities could be secured, although the consumption itself veries from year to year, it would be necessary on the production side for the Government to fix definitely the savegee, for example, which the Unkote farmer would plant in wheat. Likewise, every particular producer of farm products would need to have his prospective production regulated, since only in this manner could total production be regulated. The mere statement of the task is enough to prove the impossibility of its administration, for here the uncontrollable elements of weather and natural posts enter to make nall the best laid plans of men, since favorable weather conditions, even with a regulated screuge, would considerably increase the total yield. The differential in the increase or decrease per year on important agricultural crops is very great as it is affected by favorable or unfavorable conditions of the natural forces. It would seem that anyone would hesitate to suggest price fixing if he was familiar with our wer experlence in this respect, even if he was not acquainted with the numerous historical examples of failures by different governments during the past two thousand years. ... The New York Produce Heview and American Greamery for February 14 says in an editorial: "The February 1 prelisinary report of heldings of cheese in the United States was a little more feverable than had been indicated by the reports of holdings in the four large markets. ... The excess in our total reserve over lest year's moderate stocks is not of itself a bearish argument. With the growing importance of the prepared five pound loaves our cheese consumption is steadily expanding and we will doubtlook eat more chasse botween now and the new crop than daring the same period last year. ... Just at the moment the outlook on fresh obsess is bourish. sieconein is clearing its weekly receipts at far without trouble but enother break in the west before the close of the month is unticipated by many traders, and the fresh State choose ocen to be in a slight surplus and to be meeting little demend. ... It is all a guess, though our own opinion is that in view of the neavy demand for five pound loaves and the plane being iaid to ismediately expand that demand further, cheese consumption in this country will absorb the reserve and the heavier make quite closely by may I and we believe that any sharp secreary decline in either fresh or held cheese would be followed by a recotion upward before May."

There are many placer where you will have to make the people first before you ann make them occuparate and that will take a ceneration or two. une of the hardest things to make some people uncerstand is that cooperation is not a way to destroy trade hat to promote it; not a way to get rid of business but to do it. auch people are apt to have the idea that farming is at enmity with transportation, trade and finance, and must knock them all to pieces. With each people, acoperation must go from the bottom apperd. The mess of California farmers never were in that state of knowledge and understanding. They began their possiler type of cooperations at the top, where the largest number of producers of distinctive products were and they palled the others up to their level of team-thought and toom-work -- and thus it was our cooperations began at the top."

Jeather. weevils and women will decide the course of the parket in the next few months, and all the traders in, and consumers of, revection, will have to do will be to follow after. whether this spread between the price of cotton now on the market and that yet to be produced will be alosed ap or widered still ferther must depend apon the new erop and the attitude of those who are the principal buyers. As for the new orop, the weather and insects will be the principal factors, although labor and fertilizers will also here such to do with the production. The will to plant a large coreage is strong, atimalated as it is by present prices. But will ferners pleat and banks finance a materially larger suresus if there is doubt about the labor to cultivate and plok? ... The market may run along quietly with that wido spread betueen old and new grop contracts, but let a crop scare come at any time this summer and that spread would close like the eprine of a wolf trap. ... There can be no mirket for raw cotton unless the public will buy goods. At wint price it will stop baying is a matter of conjecture, but clothing is fundamental to life. Notwithstanding the reverse of mer. people last year consumed a huge amount, something over 80,000,000 beles, and the people of the inited itates are consuming a larger proportion of the domestic crop. if all consumers of goods refuse to pay hi hor than present prices cotton might go lower, but if they will still buy elothes. us seems likely, still enother influence would be added to close up the gap and force new crop conthe hither yet."

New York Commercial for February 15 says in an editorial: "The idahe benetor's argument as to why relief should be extended to the farmers is convincing enough and can leave no doolt in the mind of enyone that the whest farmers are in a corry plight, but granting that the fermer is up aminst it, it does not follow that Denuter Gooding has chosen the right remedy. It would be very rice for the fermers if the price of sheet would be brought up to 1.76 a bushel, but no country can valorise a product unless it has a manapoly of it. Brazil has tried valorizing coffee and succeeded bopages the rest of the world is dependent upon her for coifee, but we can not valorize wheat because we grow only a portion of the world's supply. Senator Gooding does not realize, for example, that the passage of this act would play directly into the hands of the Jamaian, the Australian. and the Argentine farmers: it wesla remove the united lintes! wheat arop from competition with the other exporting countries until their ampilies were exhausted. Then we would be able to sell as much of our surplus as sight be needed to make up whetever deficit remained of the world demand. The Australian farmers are unable to well their wheat because transportation cherres to the corld's markets are so high as to be prohibitive. If United States' wheat is placed at 11.75 a bushel it will immediately relieve their situation, because they will be able to pay these high transportation charges and still undersell us. And lean millers will have to pay the american price for wheat, us the duty on inported wheat would consume the differential. The price of bread would go up and it would mean that every man, woman and child in America would be called upon to pay a tax to help pall the farmer out of his plicat. The covernment would not be obligated, of course, to buy every bushel of wheat the farmer had to offer, although that is alearly what is expected. If there were no market for the wheat, it would remain unsold and the former would find himself in the position of regiving more per bushel, but of welling fover bushels and would, therefore, have less money. Thus, the unsold sarplus would pile up for the three years the not Richard Spillane says in The Philadelphia Ladger for February 17: "Canada's fara problem is no less difficult then that of the United States. In some respects it is worse. Provincial boards, Dominion boards, bankers end others are struggling with it without making much headway. Only in deukatcheven is there sign of improvement. There 40.000 cases of farmers' debts have been adjusted and It is hoped the agriculturists will be able to go clong without perious esterrussment, but in alberta and monitobe conditions are by no means good. In alberta an effort is being made to consolidate the obligations of the formers and amortize them over a thirty-year period. Some wellinformed persons do not see any prospect of that plan working out even if. as expected, a moderate oredit is extended to the agriculturists to otert them snow. They declare the trouble of the farmer is not that he had not aufficient oredit, but has had too much of it. He is so deeply in debt now, they insist, that he can not get out by setting further in. In Manitobs only 39 per cent of the escent of arrears and current payments due to the Manitola Farms Loan Association in the last fiscal year sas collected. Some of these errears date as far back as 1919, but only in the most aggrevuted usees did the association resort to forcelogure.

that on this side of the line is the fact that in that wonderful stretch of territory west of the Great Lakes the farms have been fruitful as a rule and the land costs have been much below those in the grain belt of the United States. There, as here, the complaint of the farmer is that transportation costs are so high that so profit is left for the grown of the crops unless the price of grain is considerably above the average. The farmer declares the transportation charges and the other expenses of the man of the sail are fixed, and he takes all the risk and does all the work and gets no profit. In proof he points to the practical bankraptcy of the Canadian grain grower to-day. ... "

Howard Ten nett, editor of the American Fool and Fotton Reporter, in advocating before a logislative committee yesterday a bill to change the minimum weekly hours of labor in mills in this State from forty-eight to fifty-four. Legislators from textile centers and labor leaders opposed the bill. It is not an idle threat that the textile mills of Passachusetts will move Bouth, said or Fennett; they are already started. He asserted that many operatives did not wish their working hours restricted. The South, he said, was conducting an agreeative campaign to transfer morthern mills to that Section."

Retarning travelers day now that every square foot of available land in Germany is under sultivation. Front yards of city houses have vegetable plots instead of flower gardens. The carefully tended house lote that were everywhere in rural Screeny years are ore now a memory. Right up to the houses grains are graving or vegetables or fruits. The people are thinking in terms of necessities. Directly, this country has almost as such consern in the rebebilitation of Germany as incland has: indirectly, it has a much greater concern because the United atates is the great exporting country of the world; and the greatest, continuous exporter is the farmer sho, therefore, is the one most concerned. The accupation of the Eahr is no mere academic question for the man on the American farm, and the United States can take no mere academic interest in this metter. A little more than a century ago 850.000 people struggled and fought for something to eat. how we support 1.700.000 persons in the world and they live better than at any other time. The next generation, however, will not be satisfied to live on what they will term our moderate seals. In the United States we are falling behind two hundred farms a day in maintaining the ratio between forms and eaters Will the time come for us that hee already come for China when famine and postilence will be common experiences and not an anmixed evil because they will relieve population pressure and protect against hunger those not destroyed? We say we can easily double our food output. But at the present rate of increase of esters how inadequate will one doubling of our yield be? And how slight an approciation of the needs of the future is reflected in our apprehension lest food production is permanently everdone.

The Sloam City Live Stock Record for February 13 says: "'Since the beginning of 1922, farm conditions have undergone a decided improvement and although farm prices have not yet risen to the level of other prices, it may be expected that, berring unfavorable developments in Europe, farm prices will gradually come up to that level and the normal progress of agricultu o will be resumed,' declared J.A. Hopkins, of the department of agricultural economics, lows State College of Agriculture, in an address before short course visitors at Ames. ... He gited instances to show that the cost per bour of man labor was twice as high on some fares (in love) as on others and stated that one of the chief reasons for this condition is that on the farms with the high labor costs, the farmers have failed to provide themselves with year-round employment. The cost of horse labor was shown to vary even more widely."

R.J. Saters says in the Teekly Landas Sity Star for february 14: "Reports from the corn and wheat belts point to a possible shortage of farm labor and a somewhat higher farm labor wage scale in 1923. This is all based on the assumption that the demand for 1-bor in the cities continues at the present high wase level. The workman in the city is still drawing war mages and a shortage of labor in many industries is already manifest. With abundant employment in the city at good wages the hope is that farm prices may advance sufficiently to offset this additional cost in produotion. It is not, however, slone is the price of fers labor that the farmer may be handles pood. He say suffer guite as much in the sotual lack of labor. The farmer can not afford to pay a sume scale that will compete with city wages and if there is a abortage of labor anywhere in the coming seeson it will be felt first and most on the farm. Exactly this condition obtains in Great britain, France. Germany, and even in Ataly, news dispatches incluste. Dity industries have outbid the farmer for workingmen and food production in those countries was actually out down last year for lesk of seasonable labor and the effect on production there promises to be even more marked this your. The remedy for our farmers lies in one of two directions. the farmers may now more of his acroase in grass and lecomes. crops that require less labor than those that are caltivated and thus run his farm with less labor than formerly or he may purchase more labor saving eachinery and make his own labor go further. In any case, the hope of every one is that form prices may advence enough to make up for the increase in rates in farm suges and give the farmer besides a better profit than he has had them at any time since fare prices becan to fall."

"Heferring to the extensive agitation for the reduction of freight rates on farm products, the hellway age presents statistics in its carrent lasce. From which it completes that a 25 per cent reduction in the rates on all farm products would reduce total expenses in the farming business of the country by only about 1 1/2 per cent. Its conclusion is based upon the estimate made by the American Fare Durena rederation that the total annual expenses of the farming industry are $9,784,000,000, and an estimate cade by the Hellway Age Ituelf that a reduction of 25 per cent in rates on form products sould amount to less then (140.000.000 annually, which is about 1 1/2 per cent of the estimated total expenditures of the farmers for all purposes. 'it is impossible, says the Sailsay age, 'to determine exactly how much the furmers pay in freight charges on their own products but it may be determined approximately. Jerm products conatituted about 15 per count of railway freight business in 1921. Statistics for western railways having 85.000 miles of lines, which were compiled by the interstate Comperce Commission and given in the opinion rendered by it in October. 1921, in the case involving rates on grain, grain products and hay, show that the average rate per ten per wile of these railways in the eight months ended april 30. 1921, was 1.38 cents, and that the sverage rate per ten per mile on grain and grain products was only 1.1 cents. They also show, however, that the average distance all traffic was bouled was the miles, shile the everage distance arein and grain products were hauled was 300 miles. In consequence, the average charge per ton for hauling all truffic was (1.96, while the everage charge per ton for healing grain and grain products was $3.32, or 12 per cent more." Hon. Reed Smoot is the subject of an interview by Theodore M. Inappen, in The Amenaine of Wall Street for February 17. In this Senator Smoot is quoted as saying of tex-exempt securities in relation to the general taxation problem: "They are a national scandal. They operate to shift the burden of taxation from the shoulders of the wealthy and from invome on property to income from labor and enterprise. Also they dry up the sources of revenue. Then a man gets to receiving an income of (50.00) a year. he netarally begins to be a legal tex evader. Also, tex exemption has created such an insatiable desand for such securities that all sorts of governmental agencies have piled up billions of unjustifiable public debts at a time when wer costs had imposed unevoidable burdens of stupendous size. That is one reason why our total per capits tax in this country, for all purposes, is now about 190 a year. For that we are to get comething like (150.000.000 a year from Britain on war dobt account, will we reduce taxation correspondingly, or will we spend that much more? We ought to be able to reduce taxation, but I fear that the dritish payments may be diverted to new expenditures; the soldiers' bonus, for instance. It is hard for an extravagant apender to reform. ... Do I think the budget system has helped any? It is all that has seved us. It has stood between the country and many millions, if not billions, of expenditures. It has been edministered admirably. Don't I think that the action of the Boune in overriding the budget and the appropriation consittee on the rivers and harbors bill is a disquieting sign of neutralisation of the budget plan? No. It is the sole important exception to date to the rule of not exceeding the budget estimates."

artificial control of supply and demand is board to meet with resistance and in the end undoubtedly to bring about a condition worse than the first. If the american effort proves successful, the British exporters of rubber will have lost their carket and will be considerably worse off than if they had accepted lower prices during the period when demand was not sufficient to absorb the supply. The control of exports returnly brings higher prices for the exporters, but it also reduces the output and must necessarily bring suffering to the natives who are thus deprived of their means of liveliheod. Interference with economic law is bound to bring a retribution in its wake. The British control can afford only temporary relief to British exporters."

Peal H. Miller says in the Outlook for February El: "A certain cow, according to Mr. Lowis Ldwin Theiss, Fed by the Department of Agriculture on pasture, silego, and elfalfa hay, produced in one year 470 pounds of batter-fat. The next year, given the same emount of roughage, and 7.056 pounds of grain in addition, this cow produced 623 pounds of butter-fat. That is, by adding 7.366 pounds of grain to the ratio 253 pounds of butter-fut was produced. as Er. Thoise remerks, this is an excellent illustration of how wilk production may be increased by proper feeding. it is also a fine illustration of how many a inewtype farmer has gone to the wall. For 7.066 pounds of grain at (50 a ton coats (106.84, end 368 pounds of butter-fat at 30 cents a pound sells for $105.90 that leaving the astate farmer 6 cents for his trouble, which includes healing and mixing the grain and drawing and separating the milk, to may nothing of the intellectual effort apant in polying the 'nice little problem' of balancing the ration, which 'calls for a keen, analytical, observant mind. ... Give that spotted helfer a little more cottonseed meal and cut down on the ground oorn.' basis farmer Corntossel to his bired man, at the same time deftly parrying a sideswipe from Old Pied. 'And you aight out out Red's grain entirely, she don't give enough to pay for the feed. Thus does larger Corntessel handle the intricate problem of feeding. His mind may not be very keen or analytical, but from the ventage-point of a one-logged milkstool it functions practically, at least. Laybe he has never road that what the heifer needs is a higher percentage of protoin in her food. He does know that a little more meal and less oorn will get better results. In you he coss not reflect, after having carefully imprected all the records, that Hed has resched the point of diminishing returns, and that hereafter each additional unit of feed will sive increasingly amuller yields. He does know that it is about time for Red to go dry, and that grain eaten by her now will boost the feed bill more than the cream check. "of long ago a dairy farmer of my State went bankrupt. He was a solentifle farmer, with a fine herd, fine equipment, and fine merket. By every mark he should have succeeded in making a living. I do not know what the trouble was. It may have been

that he was feeding his cowe to see how much they could prodate, se the Department of Agriculture fed the Holatein. anyway at the end of a few years his liabilities exceeded his essets by seven or eight thousand dollars, and to-day his sustanors are supplied by a man who feeds his cows 'a accopful of this and a pailful of that,' and maybe not much of either. I was reared in town, and completed an agricultural course, as well as neveral others, and so I do not deary the new farmer. For the past few years I have been working for other furners and farming for myself. I weigh each cow's milk and test it -- when there is time -- and belance the rations, and so forth, yet I have a great deal of respect for the farmer who does not. Farming is first of all an art, and it would be remarkable if men who have been making a living at it for the last quarter century or more, and their fathers before them, had not to a considerable extent mastered the art. At least they are not so ignorant of their business es is senetimes supposed."

The Fermer for February 17 cays in an editorial: "Out of the wealth of suggestions advanced by the friends of agriculture. I have been endeavoring to determine what help for agriculture is real and beneficial and what is false and misleading. A very few constructive ideas can be glouned from the mass of visionary, impractical, political, selfish plans that have been edvenced for the relief of agriculture. but of the whole mean of evidence I have considered. I have concluded that there is no quick and sure sure for the troubles of the farmer, and I have concluded also that the solution of the problem rests not in legislation, but it rests right in the hands of the farmer who can get help only by helping himself. The more I travel over the country and the more I talk with intelligent agricultural leaders, the more firmly I become convinced that the farmer has within his own hands the power to put agriculture on a permanently profitable basis. This power must be exercised in two ways. lirst. It is necessary to so organize agriculture that it will take its place in the Fation's affairs along with organized business and organized labor in order that the voice of agriculture will be heard in the direction of public affairs. ... The farmers' cooperative marketing movement, to my wind, offers greater hope for the economic salvation of agriculture than all the legislative remedies combined."

cultural Islation The Rural New-Yorker for February 17 says in an editorial: "Our farmers feel that a combination of small groups of educators, uplifters and politicians have assumed the right of thinking, speaking and legislating for the masses of country people. We may grant that the educators and the aplifters are sincerely desirous of helping the farmers. They often fail because they do not, somehow, credit the farmer with enough constructive ability to know just what he reeds and how to go after it. It would be impossible to sork it out, but we should like to see the experiment tried of having the three groups mentioned above absolutely take their hands off all rural legislation for 10 years and let the farmers do it themselves through their own selected leaders. If you say they would fail at the job, we answer that it has never been tried, in the mastern States at least, and that the farmer has never yet failed at any job he has controlled."

or Lodge

Through the tender that has been made by Joy Lorton, it is possible now for Rebrasks to receive Arbor Lodge as a gift. This property comprises forty scree, but the gift contemplates thirty-two screes more included in Borton Park, in which is the statue erected in memory of J. Sterling Rerton. ... If Mr. Borton's gift of Arbor Lodge is accepted, it would be with the understanding that it will be maintained and developed as a spot of historic interest, and the set by the legislature should be passed as a memorial to the founder of Arbor Day, who was also a former Secretary of the U.S. Separtment of Agriculture. reign at Trade

The National Provisioner for Pebruary 17 says in an editorial: "The Australian most industry is organizing to bring book better times to the meat trade. Having constitated a meet council by action of the Federal Government. certain lines of action have been laid down as nacessary for a rehabilitation of the mest business. The most important problem is that of the beef export business. And to meet that it is proposed to deal with the matter of ocean shipping rates. At present it seems likely that some just basis will to worked out chartly. And since volume is necessary to make the trade a success, representatives of the trade are to be sont to the sest. South America and to Great Britain. But one of the phases of the beef business that is coming sore and more to the front is the fact that the quality of the stock must be improved. Already the Federal Government is paying the cost of importing high-class stock. All these masters of possible improvement of the Australian meet trade are of interest to american packers. But of special interest is a new phase which has just been considered seriously. This is the possibility of extending the export trade in pork to European markets. That, if carried out, will mean active competition with American pork products abroad. It is therefore worthy of close study by the meat trade in America."

New England Homestead for February 17 says in an editorial: "It is fine that President Harding comes out strong for a truly national forest policy. ... Some of our New England States have attempted to improve this matter of taxing woods, but still more liberal policy is well worth while. The greatest trouble with forestry in New England, however, is the matter of fires caused by careloss hunters, tourists and city people. The public must be educated to safeguard against forest fires while those who start fires carelessly or intentionally should be punished. Losses from forest fires in the Old Bay State last year were greater than ever."

"The item in last week's Frice Current-Grain Reporter. relating to the German potato crop, should have carried some comment, perhaps, that while it stated a valid comparison of conditions existing prior to the harvest of 1922, the potato orop of that year was so enormous as to render the comparisons deseptive as a statement of purrent conditions. There is more in it then just this, however. One of the mysteries of the fall and winter has been the falling off of the German demand for wheat and corn. Our Covernment has repeatedly pointed out that the Gorman people needed wheat and inferred that therefore they would buy it, but they have not done so in expected canntities. The reasons probably are that they are both short of money and long of potatoes and other root crops. They will not, therefore, as P.S. Soodman has pointed out, be in need of food or feeds so long as potatoes and root crops last; and the agent at berlin of the separtment of agriculture last week saw fit to advise that Jerman imports of corn for alochol are likely to be less than a year ago for the same reason. This is evidenced by the fact that distillation of alcohol from potatoes is now permitted up to Grain exports from the United States last week totaled 3,650,000 bashels, compared with 6,649,000 bashels for the week previous. The drop was due principally to heavy declines in the amount of wheat, corn and cats went to the United Lingdom and other suropean countries. The Department of Commerce reports the totals as: Sheat, 1,164,000 bashels, against 2,861,000; corn, 954,000, spainst 2,163,000; barley, 415,000, against 114,000; rye, 1,089,000, against 1,462,000; cats,28,000, against 49,000. The Estional Provisioner for Pebruary 17 says in an editorial: "For some time packers who have been studying the hog situation and several other authorities have put themselves on record to the effect that the pork trade at the present time did not warrant the prices for which hogs have been selling for a long period. The reasons upon which this business judgment was based were the chance of good basiness with huropean customers and the present prices of pork products. As a basiness proposition it did not seem that the hog prices could be paid with any profit to packers. But the prices of hogo have kept up in the face of large receipts in a remarkable way. And this in spite of the predictions of speedy decline which were made by some authorities. ... It would seem clear that considering all these factors the conclusion is inevitable that the hog market is going down."

de Ressa of February 19 states that large orders for potassium salt, mainly from the United States, are reported to have been placed recently with the potash syndicate. American concumption of these selts is said to have increased considerably, due to the popularity among the agriculturiats of alxed fertilizers with a higher percentage of potash.

1. The Journal of Commerce for February 17 says in an editorial: "You may expect continued high prices for all the products of the farm and range in this country and, in some cases at least, considerably hisher values than those now reling. The farmer is in revelt. Be works long hours and hard, and has regularly been forced to be content with very meager returns for his labor. He deserves sore of the good things of life and, moreover, he is now determined to have them. The rural population is making itself heard in the halls of Congress as never before in the memory of the living generation, and, what is as much to the point, is organising into cooperative associations and is, or soon will be, in a position to make his devends for higher prices for his products effective. Moreover, it would be a good thing for the whole business community if the farmer did get more for his wares. This statement of the case undoubtedly represents a carrent philosophy. Such a pradiction and such an economic doctrine are much more widely preached than many perhaps realise. It is by no means confined to farmers' organisations or the respont agrarians in asshington or in the state expitals. In certain circles in our speculative commodities' markets this philosophy, or senething closely similar to it. is very commonly heard. ... That there are certain elements of truth in those atterances there will be few who care to dony. The farmer is proverbially a poor besiness man. He has suffered, and is suffering in consequence, He is westeful in his purchasing, his production and his selling. In addition, he has been imposed upon by our tariff makers, our immigration rostrictionists and by his soi-aleant friends in politics. He, moreover, is now very much in the saddle, both in a political sense and in other ways, and may do himself some good, and is very likely to hurt other interests in the business community. On the other hand, these much presched agrarian destrines (which, by the way, are by no moses now) contain much that is fallacious and essentially denserous to the farmer himself as well as to the rest of the community. Because there are rural wrongs to be righted and rural reforms to be effected is no resson for as to fail to svoid the harm to which much of the program now so frequently heard would eithout doubt load. It would probably be as impossible, as it would containl be unwise, to raise agricultural prices up to match those in other lines. What is really needed is to get other prices down to a level in keeping with agricultural values."

An interview with irving Fisher, in The Marasine of Sall Street for February 17, easy in part: "Basiness men will be particularly interested in learning that Professor Fisher holds that there will be a general advance in commodity prices during the coming year. And, indeed, this view occurs to gain some added weight, judging by the course of the price of a number of commodities since the beginning of the year which have shown ammistakable signs of editing upsord. Fot only does Professor Fisher believe in excellent possibilities for a rise in commodity prices during the contents the treed outlook for prices dealared that the general eatlook fivered a higher commodity price level during the next few years."

The Secretary of Agriculture has recently pointed out that many of the fermer's troubles are due to over-production and this is andoubtedly true, but over-production in the matter of wheat is a peculiarly difficult problem to regulate. The average yield of wheat per acre varies so much from year to year, chiefly on account of weather conditions, that any marked decrease in the total of wheat acreage might easily result in an actual shortage. Furthermore, there is a definite appeard trend in the per capita wheat consumption of the United States, amounting at present to an increase of between ten and fifteen pounds (one-sixth to one-quarter of a bushel) annually. This tendency, coupled with the annual increase in

Rubber Inquiry appropriation of $500,000 for an investigation by the Departments of Agriculture and Commerce of the possibilities of developing the rubber plantation industry in the Philippine Islands and Letin America was given yesterday by the House Committee on Appropriations, in reporting the third deficiency bill to the House. (Press, Feb. 23.)

Monopolies Abroad Statements made by Secretary Hoover that comFeared by Hoover binations of foreign capital had obtained monopolistic control not only of the production of rubber but of that of nitrates and other commodities of which the United States was the principal importer were revealed February 22, when his testimony before a sub-committee of the House Committee on Appropriations was made public. Secretary Hoover stated that the rubber producers of the British Hast Indies controlled about 75 per cent. of consumption and that the United States used about 75 per cent. of the world's supply. Of the American importations 80 per cent. were used by the automobile industry. The British controlled prices as well as production.

secretary Hoover also told the committee he favored development of Muscle Shoals for making nitrates and that he was against Government operation. It was brought out at the committee hearing that the United States has paid nearly $1,000,000,000 for Chilean nitrates since the Civil War. (Press, Feb. 23.)

House Passes

Congressional action on the British debt settlement program was concluded by the adoption by the House, February 22, of Senete amendments to the measure, which now goes to the President. (Press, Feb. 23.)

Extermination "The parley of the leaders of the forces which will wage a national warfare upon the cotton boll weevil resulted in important action at the opening session at Atlanta, February 20, of the national cotton conference. Outstanding developments were the appointment of a committee composed of all the governors of the cotton growing States to develop an 'interstate boll weevil war treaty' among the cotton States, as suggested by President Harding, to insure coordinated action, and the announcement of a contribution of $75,000 by the members of the New York Cotton Exchange to the fund with which the fight upon the insect pest will be conducted. Announcement of the first large donation to the fund of $2,500,000 which will be raised for the weevil warfare was made by George M. Shutt, president of the New York Cotton Exchange."

Villiam Hard says in The New York Times for February El: "Congress is about to make a decision possibly revolutionary to the business life of the country. It is about to decide whether or not at this time to take the United States Covernment into deily agricultural commercial credit banking .... It is impossible to understand this amazing situation without remembering the year 1920. In that year the private banks of the United States--and the Federal Reserve System -- failed dissatrously to be able to supply the grain growers and the cotton growers and the outtle growers of the United States with the credite which they needed, and which they deserved. in the midet of the crisis cannod by the sadden tranio deflation and domoralization of the prices of their products. Then came the United States Government War Finance Corporation. Out of Covernment funds -- in order to seet the emergency -- it leaned several hundred million dollars to banks and to farmers' societies for the benefit of individual farmers, in the gradual and orderly marketing of their demoralized commodities. Our farmers, therefore, saw two spectacles. They saw the failure of our private banking ayetem to give them adequate help: and they saw the ancoose of the dar Finance Corporation in giving them a large amount of highly efficient help. Out of those two spectacles comes the existing situation. In large numbers the ferners have turned in bitterness from private banking and have turned with hope to governmental banking .... The fact is that in this matter of banking credits we have now come to a wherp parting of the ways. Does the Capper bill hold out a hope that private capital can still cocomplish the financing of agriculture? Or -- at a moment when we are contemplating a subsidy to our obipping industry -- and at a moment when through taxexempt securities we are already giving an enermous subsidy to our municipal industries--and at a moment when we soon shall be contemplating a governmental loon and therefore, a governmental subsidy for freight cars and locomotives to our railroad industry-must we also governmentally sabsidize our basis industry of agriculture?"

State socialism, and the wrocks there speak in their melancholy language of the results. In South Dakota rural credits is a demonstration of a similar impulse, and the system accounts largely for the debt of the State, but nothing has happened there so unfortunate as in its sister State. A reaction is in progress, and we likely shall soon reach the point of a fair compromise between the old one-man idea and socialistic practice. You do not hear much of these wild undertakings...."

Conadian Immigration The New York Times for February 30 says:

"According to the Canadian Labor Gazette, an ambitious project for the settlement of Canadian lands near railway routes is being furthered by the sesters Canada Colonization Association, a privately financed organization. The association proposes to work in cooperation with the British overseas settlement plan and also to bring settlers with some means from the United States. Great Britain. Scandinavia and various Saropean countries. The British Government, it is eaid, which already has a fund of $225,000,000 for the assistance of settlers in its various dominions, will liberally share the cost of Canadian welfare work for agricultural settlers."

Equity Exchange

Rebrasry 21, reorganisation of the Equity Cooperative Exchange was effected Fabruary 20, under an agreement for dismissal of receivership proceedings against the organization. The agreement involved a change in virtually the entire executive percennel, with Faul Bore, of West Branch, Ia., as president, succeeding Louis Boltemoier, of Valley City, F.D., and C. E. Watts as general manager in place of L. B. Swunson. The receivership action, instituted a month ago by stockholders and members, who alleged mismanagement and fraid, and which resulted in a court hearing lasting a week, was dismissed in District Court. It was announced that the Equity is solvent and will make funds evailable for payment of approximately $40,000 additional to members of the 1922 grain pool.

road, business and other interests asing large numbers of unskilled labor, appeared before the Senate Committee on Immigration February 23 to arge removal of restrictions which, they said, threaten the supply of anskilled labor. The majority of the committee is understood to have reached the conclusion that new immigration restriction legislation is too important a subject to attempt to pass during the closing hours of the session, especially in view of the fact that existing restrictions remain in force until June 30, 1924. Secretary Rosver is salling for $500.000 for 'investigation' of conditions with the purpose of acsuring a stable and choos rabber supply for the American producer from 'independent' wources. There is also a propaganda movement to create the imprescion that rubber is being shut off or artificially raised in price by foreign combinations of producers. with the result that something is needed here in the United States to assure decent treatment of our consumers. Before we spend 4600,000, or any other such sum from a Treasury already facing a severe deficit. let us understand exactly where we stand at present. The price of rubber is about 35g per pound, or neurly three times last year's low flaure. The flaure is, however, only about one-third the high price that has provailed at times in the past and is somewhat under the normal prewar price. Cost of production is supposed to be. in the more divered of the rubber producing countries, schething like a shilling (British) per pound. Above this, of course, is allowance for bad erop years, overhead of verious kinds and transportation -- all of which must come out of our market price. Apparently what Ford and his followers went (with the sid of our administration) is to force prices back to a figure much below even prewer expense so that they can have cheaper material for the making of automobile tires. Shat is the basis for much a demand? It is alleged that the efforts of British and Dutch producers, taken together, have rosulted in ourtailing the supply of rubber and correspondingly raising its price, with the result that our manufacturors are being disadventaged in competition with Great Britain. Fow the facts are that rubber is a nlow and costly growth. The producers have to go on turning out about as much one year with enother, if they do not wish to see their plantations over grown and their labor largely lost. There has been no very material reduction in rubber supply. That has been done to prevent further extension of rubber lands and to hold up prices in various ways may have been effective in bringing about the recent advance in prices, or it may not. Most commodities have recovered from the low point of depression which came after the reaction of 1920-1921. Thy should rabber be an exception? Stabilizing or valorising plans have a way of falling of their own weight and are pretty sure to do so, as past experience shows... Can Scoretary Hoover do any-thing by instituting such a 'survey' as is now planned? Subber is a commodity that has been perhaps as elaborminutely examined into in the Philippines, as well as in most of the tropical countries where it is produced. As for its commercial aspects, they are well known. No occasion exists for any such outlay as (500,000 on any such subject. There is nothing to be had in the way of information that would warrant it. What needs to be known can be obtained practically without expense."

Section 3.

The Crange Judd Parmer for February 16 care in oditorial: "A lot of newspapers are giving especial prominence to a report by the United States Department of Agriculture setting forth the reasons why some two hundred or more of farmer cooperative companies thiled, went broke or into bankruptoy. The opinion scope to be that this proves that the farmer is not capable of running a business proposition. An examination of the report, however, will show that these concerns failed for exactly the same reasons that thousands of nonfermer corporations have gone bamp- Red man genent, poor judgment, insufficient capital, wrong location. and all the other reasons that figure every my in the benkraptcy courts. The fact that the two hundred odd were farmer concerns had nothing to do with the failure .... cople who are trying to prove by the Department of Agriculture report that farmers are not competent to ran a business proposition are missing the point of the report entirely. The showing is that some farmer concerns have failed for exactly the same reasons that wrecked similar non-farmer enterprises. And it didn't need an official investigation to establish that fact."

correct-inderson Messure Secretary Callace and Secretary Hoover Approved by Administratives February ES gave their approval to the Lenroot-Anderson credit bill. Hecretary allace stating the measure as passed by the Senate had received the cordial approval of Fresident Harding. Secretary Hoover and the Department of Commerce would feel "it would be a great disaster if the bill should fail to become a law."

The House Committee on Benking and Carrency, considering rurel oredits legislation, is understood to have agreed upon the Tapper bill with the addition of nonconflicting parts of the Lenroot-Anderson bill and the Strong bill, recently passed by the House, and their inclusion into one comprehensive program of farm credit relief. (Fress. Feb. 24.)

Rubber Investigation The New York Times to-day says: "Tesident Harding heartily approves of the proposal for an appropriation of $500,000 to secretary Hoover for rederal investigation of the possibilities of growing rubber within the United States. It was stated at the Shite House that Mr. Hoover might endeavor to arrange a conference of American and British capitelists with a view to some understanding as to the alleged monopolies in certain commodities produced abroad and consumed for the most part in the United States."

A New York dispatch to The Washington Star of February 23 says: "dealers in crude rabber in this market are thoroughly in sympathy with the development of a source of supply which will make the United States entirely independent of foreign nations, they announced to-day. Agricultural Credit Logislation The "hiladelphia ledger for February AS says in an editorial review of the Capper and Lenroot bills: "The Lenroot measure is chook-full of paternalism and permeated with the possibilities of a further extension of bureaucracy. It would put the Covernment over night into the business of making loans to farmers. The Capper measure takes advantage of the Federal Reserve System and gives the farmer the help he needs and to which he is ontitled. The Capper bill should pass. It does not sand the Covernment on further and doubtful edventures into the farm-loan business. It will strengthen the Federal Reserve System and, in turn, be strengthened by that system. Sithout the freation of further machinery it can and will take care of farm-credit needs."

Boll Weevil Eradication

The Journal of Commerce for February 13 mays in un editorial: "Leading figures in all the sundry sections of the cotton trade in this country recently met in Atlanta and spent two days discussing plans for a vigorous and effective fight to the death with the boll weevil.... Such gatherings have a very important function to perform in cases of this nort where it is necessary to correct erreneous impressions of the effect of the pest upon the grower and to wake the rank and file of the cotton farmers to the necessity of controlling the weevil. Care should be taken, however, not to arouse false hopes in the minds of the planters. This is primarily their fight, and it is likely to prove a long drawn out affair. Help can, and no doubt will, be extended by sundry Government agencies and by others directly interested in the welfare of the cotton industry, but the brunt of the battle must inevitably be borne by the man who raises the extten, and the solution of the problem is much more likely to take the form of painstsking and continuous control of the insect than it is to be comprised of some method of credicating the weevil once for all. There is danger in some of the propagenda that is now being put forward. One 'expert' who has recently been retained by the American Cotton Association is credited with the statement that when the solution is found it will be so simple that many will wonder why it had never been thought of before. If any such development does occur it will certainly be something new in the business of pest control, and the chance of that is alight indeed. If the warfare that is now planned is to be successful it will probably be as necessary for the farmer to walk and not faint as it is that he run and not be weary. Real harm may easily be done by leading the grower to suppose that a way will be found whereby he may by a spart of endeavor rid himself of the weevil for all time. In the meantime there is one important service that those interested in the matter eacht to perform, and that is to determine with as great a degree of accuracy as is possible the amount of calcium arsenate that can be sold at current prices to the farmers during the coming season. There has been a large amount of rather wild talk on this subject for some time past, but little that is definite and trustworthy enough to afford the manufacturer a reliable basis upon which to law his plans. As it is, he is a little apt to recall the propagands of only a few months ago to the effect that the boll weevil was the 'blessed weavil' and to question whether the farmer has thoroughly learned the fallacy of that view of the matter."

A Pape Girardean, No., dispathh to Manufacturers Record for February 22 says: "A campaign to revive the cotton industry in this section was inaugurated at a meeting of more than 300 representative farmers and basiness men from eight counties in Southeast Missouri at the State Formal College here. An addition of 100,000 acres planted to cotton this year will bring many million dollars to this territory before the year ends, according to J. A. Montgomery of Stoddard County, president of the Southeast Missouri Agricultural Bureau. Speakers asserted that the ultimate on toome of the campaign will double the population of Southeast Missouri in five years and eventually increase the annual income of the farmers nearly $100,000,000."

Research

New York Commercial for Vebruary 21 says in an editorial: "In an address to the Mational Gredit Men's association the other evening, Trofessor Williford I. King, of the National Bureau of Moonomic Research, doclared it possible to predict with ressonable assurance the morement of business cycles. Professor King admitted that business eyeles are in-Masnoed by innumerable unpredicted factors, but asserted that the commanding factors in business cycles occur with a periodicity that makes forecasting a science within the reach of modern economists. Professor King said that three movements of varying length had been noted, a wave moving over a period of twenty years, one moving over a period of seven years and one over a period of three and one-half years, and that the last had been established more definitely then any of the others. If such theories are to be accepted, it would mean that there is some influence at work outside of which the human mind has any knowledge. Science has made great strides in weather forceseting and yet it has scarcely scratched the surface. There is no way of telling whether we are going to have a severe or a mild season, and after a season has come and gone we are no better off than we were before in declaring why it was. When we here a mild winter, the theory is advanced that the Julf Stream has shifted its course, and when we have a severe winter it probably has shifted in the other direction, but at last accounts it was right where it has always been. Trying to account for wave lengths of business nowements and forecasting from them what business will do is just about like taking an average of what the weather has been on the fourth of March for ten years or twenty years. or thirty or even forty years, and predicting it accordingly .... All that any research work can do is to tabulate the experiences of the past. The result is a tabulation of facts. It is necessary then to search for the causes and it may be that these causes have recurred with systematic regularity, but that is still another effect for which still another cause is to be found: Why have these effects recurred with such regularity? The probability in our own case in that we have had a faulty banking system that would operate just so far and then would full down: but that has all been changed and our banking machinery now works much more evenly and systematically so that our theorists in making their forecasts must add that as a new factor. All that is revealed by these researches is that there are certain fundamental principles in operation, certain economic laws, which if violated bring their own penalties. All that can be done is to apply the data we have now available to those fundamental principles and see what will work out. The theory of precedent will not work at all because all precedent was wiped out by the wer. There are many new and tremendous factors to be included in our equation. Hever before has America been the great creditor Nation, nor has Europe been so deeply in debt, nor have we owned most of the gold in the world. Hever before have labor costs been so high, nor has our transportation system been operating under such complicated conditions. The theorists have been predicting a period of secondary inflation to be followed by secondary depression. This would quite likely be the case had it not been modified by the fact that we will be engaged for some years in repairing war damage."

operate the land for a period of not less than five years. That country has only 6 per cent. of tenant farmers now. It may be that under our system of land ownership, it would not be easy to work out such a Solution here, but the underlying that is that the ownership of land for purely speculative purposes should be discouraged. To be some this is being discouraged because the return from farm land is so small now that, with taxes and interest taken into account, there is little to encourage non-resident ownership. This does not, however, relieve the barden of high rates of rental which are imposed as a means of enabling non-resident or non-operating farm owners at least to break even. This reminds us again of a factor that has much to do with the present high farm production cost -- namely, the interest that must be earned on the investment. As between land at 075 per sero and $150 per sere, the difference on an interestproducing basis at 6 per cent. is 84.60 per sore. The time is not very long pust since this would have been regarded a rather high rent, without considering any of the other items that enter into the cost of production. Various methods of taxation will be proposed as a me and of overcoming the marked tendency toward land tenantry in this country, but it is not probable that any of these recommendations will be adopted. Meanwhile, if some method could be worked out by which the ownership of land would be confined to those who live upon and operate it, the speculative value will be largely removed, the over-head cost of production would be greatly reduced, and content emong farmers would steadily increase."

Department of Agriculture

The Mational Stockman and Farmer (Formsylvania edition) for February 24 says in an editorial: "Dr. C. T. Larson did well when he got officials of all dairy breed organizations together and suggested that they substitute a progressive dairy estile progress for destructive breed rivalry. They soon found plenty of work ahead of them, and there is room for all the breeds in the great industry which they will henceforth unite in promoting. Testing for production, wider distribution of purebred cattle, public sales as a means of distributing them, reduction of cost of recording. improvement of shows in an educational way, eradication of tuberculosis, rules governing official tests and other problems require united action. The inter-breed supervision of official tests might also be considered, as there are certain disadvantages as well as advantages in the present system of testing by representatives of agricultural colleges."

ral Credats rislation The House Committee on Banking and Currency February 24 agreed upon a composite farm credits bill embracing the principal features of the Lenroot-Anderso: Capper and Strong measures, which will be formally re-ted to-day and taken up for consideration probably tomorrow. The measure, irman McFadden said, would set up a $60,000,000 intermediate credit orization, as an adjunct to the Federal Farm Loan banking system, but with assets entirely independent of the parent body. Paper of the intermeditived or credit system would be eligible for rediscount at Federal Reserve banks.

ess, Peb. 25.)

In an editorial review of rural credits legislation, The New York es to-day says: "The Senate passed two rural credits bills, and Washingtelegrams forecast the combination of them into a single bill before House returns either to the Senate. The Cabinet is divided in its nions on the program. Banking opinion is united against a superfluity of manent banking innovations to meet an emergency which has mostly passed which is unlikely to recur. If the Capper bill should pass the House ne, at least there would be no harm done and the farmers would be sufiently relieved. If the Lenroot bill were added to the Capper bill, the r would be opened for other additions, of which many are pending, and result might be that the farmers by asking for too much would get hing. ... The truth is that no system of credit will remedy troubles not sed by lack of credit. The farmers reject assurances of highest authoriand the record of the facts, that credit was given them in excess until er the markets for all commodities collapsed. No power of law can restore the farmers the price levels which were caused and sustained by expendies of tax moneys raised in all lands, and combined into a flood which sed the farmers' forgotten profits. The farmers forget that their crop ues rose from six billions in the first war year to fifteen billions in 9. The fall this year to nine billions is dizzying, and yet leaves the mers with a larger share of war profits than some other industries re-. The farmers suffer further from the fact that the buying power of ir crops was lessened by the irregular rise and fall of the price levels that the farmers buy. The regulation of price levels is not a function banks and credit machinery. It is easier to sympathize with the farmers to agree with their demands for the wrong medicine."

ultural letion

- torial review of the Capper and Lenroot bills: "The Lenroot bill is correct in principle to the extent that the fallest opportunity should be given to farmers to obtain credit equal to that supplies to industry, but it does not so the right say about it. Farmers, morely because they are farmers, are not to be permitted to obtain credit just for the asking, either from the banks of the country or from any Government agency. They must be able to furnish satisfactory evidence, not only of their willingness but of their ability to pay the loan back. The suggestion of Chairman before of the House Banking and Currency Committee -- namely, that the Capper bill should be passed forthwith and the Lenroot bill be allowed to go over for more careful consideration -- is entirely sound."
- William Hard says in a review of acricultural legislation in The Nation for February 28: "Jongress is throngod with bills for the resone of the farmer in the matter of credits. The furmer has already been researd in the matter of the oppressions practiced apon him by speculators in grain. He has already been rescued in the catter of the iniquities perpetrated exainst him by the packers. He has been rescued from the folly which denied him a direct reprecentation of his interests on the Federal Heserve Board. He has been rescaed from the indignity and dancer of having his cooperative marketing societies menaced by the Chernan Anti-Trust law. The only remaining rescues of his to be accomplished are a resone from the railroads and a resone from the banks. He anfortunately could not be reseased from the railroads at this session because a discussion of the railroad question would bring out the alliance between certain furmers' societies and the railroad trade unions and would raise LaFollotte of Tisconsin and Brookhart of lows to their feet with an attack on the Tailroad Labor Board, and would also raise Couzons of Michigan to his feet with an attack on the efficiency of private rellroad management, and would also inspire the whole farm bloc under the leadership of Capper of Lunsas to pant for the repeal of large fragments of the Lach-Cummins fundamental 'Transportation law. In such circumstances President Sarding drew back from his long-charished purpose of improving the 'teath' of the Reilroad Labor Board; and Lenator Jummins drew back from his long-cherished purpose of 'perfecting' the Loch-lammins Transportation Law -- and the farmer could not be rescued from the railroads. He was all the more remeased from the banks. ... " Of the farm finance bills, Mr. Hard says: "The Lenroot bill is an innovating bill. It establishes new governmental banking credit institutions and activities. Both bills are now back as I write -- in the House. The contest between them is between existing credit ways improved along lines of private enterprise and new credit ways invented along lines of governmental initiative. In any case the session ends with the farmer our central thought and with an international banker doing the central thinking for rarelizing the Federal Reservo System on his behalf."

Beaumont Pease, reviewed the agricultural orisis and indicated the manner in which the Jovernment and the banks could be of most assistance to the fermor, and said: 'Agriculture is saffering from a rapid fall in prices, while there has been no corresponding fall in the cost of production. To meet the cituation the Jovernment proposes to grant credit facilities, to engearage cooperation as well as agricultural education and research, and to take what steps it can in the direction of lessening the cost of transport and reducing local rates and the difference between producers' and consamers' pricec. ... If some credit machinery could be set up by which the farmer could be assured of more or less permanent loans, subject, of course, to reductions, but not liable to be saddenly called in. I think this possibly might have some beneficial offect."

The Pacific Deiry Review for February 15 says in an editorial: "Our batter might be commercially graded, for example, as extras, firsts and 'scraba.' So can imagine that a creamery getting returns for 'scrab' butter would get comewhat of a jolt. If the returns give a grade of, say, seconds or thirds it simply passes it on by paying a lower price to the 'scrab' dairyman for the 'scrab' cream from the 'scrab' herd, but when the product of the greamery also gets into the 'scrab' classification we imagine that it would get under the skin of the management. It may be a strong term to ase on a food product, but so is the product. 'Earaba' of all kinds should be eliminated from the dairy industry."

New York Commercial for February 23 mays in an editorial: "The American cotton industry calls for a thorough revision. Its method of production is uneconomic and its method of distribution is worse. There is a tremendous amount of waste effort and of actual loss between producer and consumer. The greatest stop forward was the introduction of commercial fertilizer, but unless the boll weevil is controlled it will mean that large areas will have to give up the cultivation of cotton. In some respects this may be a blessing in disguise in that it will force the cultivation of other crops besides cotton, but the feet remains that cotton must be produced. It is a situation so serious that it should not be left to private initiative. The Federal Government should take hold and with the aid of the state governments chould adopt the most drastic means for stamping out the weevil, spending whatever money is necessary to secomplish the result. If the public health were at stake, emergancy measures would be adopted. The boll weevil scourge is in its way just as serious. It should not be a question of trying to induce the farmers to adopt ecientific methods of control; they should be forced to do so. That is the use of one group of farmers taking the necessary precautions if even a single farmer in the nearby territory fails to do so. (Cont'd on page 4.)

The Sall Street Journal for February 24 says in an editorial: "Expressions of alarm from Lancashire phould make themselves heard in our outton producing states. The tene in not that which is usually ascribed to fright, but rether to resentment. In short, the spinners of Lancashire fear for their future supply of cotton, and are disposed to protect themselves before a shortage occurs. Sir Charles Macare, the foremost inglish authority on the cotton spinning industry. sams the situation up in these words: 'Cotton is not the God-given monopoly of any country, and if America does not keep pace with the world's requirements, or runs prices to a point which makes the purchase of cotton goods impossible for the great mass of the poorest people in the world, then there is nothing for it but to look elsewhere for a great part of our supplies.' Great Britain is our principal ous-tomer for raw cotton, two of her important markets for finished goods are India and China, whose people are poor. These facts must be kept in mind. ... England has good cause to fear for one of her greatest industries, and take stops to secure it a sapply of raw materials. If we think no other country can produce cotton equal to ours we delade ourselves. Brazil, for instance, has large suitable areas of land, with the labor to raise a great deal of cotton somewhat similar to our American-Egyptian. It is probable also that Justralia could be developed into an important producer. Should the British people set themselves to the tesk of developing new ootton territories in Africa, Asia and South America, there is no doubt of their ability to succeed."

Mo's Wheat Mortage

"Franco's wheat shortage has been found by the Linistry of Agriculture to be less than supposed. Revised statistics published February 25 show that last year's crop totaled 65,000,000 quintals, instead of 64,000,000 quintals, as previously announced. The shortage, however, is still sufficiently serious, the sinistry says, to necessitate the severest measures of economy, including the use of rye and other substitutes in flour and reduction in the wastage of bread. It is desired to restrict as far as possible importations of wheat, which are particularly costly in view of the fall of the French france."

The Daily Drovers Journal-Stockman for February 19 says in an editorial: "Competition in farm production will be keener than ever this year. Indications are that help will be scarcer and higher priced than in 1922 and it is up to the wise farmer to face the situation and prepare for this condition. Cost of production must be reduced instead of increased and how to accomplish this is the big problem. A western Banker suggests a solution in 'more intensive farming and less pretensive farming."

Willis O. Wing asys in The Breeder's Gazette for Pebruary 22: "The Luropean corn-borer now has a substantial foothold in five states. In Ohio it has doubled its area in the past year. ... Dr. L.O. Howard, Federal Entemologist at Washington, writes me that his department has been doing some research work in France, and has seen two parasites so fat that give promise of furnishing relief. These will be introduced into Massachusette first, as this area has a rich infestation, thereby giving the parasites a chance to take hold. Up to this time certainly the borer has been too thin to be successfully fought with persites in Chio. Time will take care of that part all right, though. The Tederal appropriation for last year was $200,000 for the united States, when much more was needed. The Senate finance committee recently increased this appropriation to 4250,000, so that, it seems to me, the coming season some (50,000 will be at hand with which to put up an active fight. Tho Federal men are looking into our problem. Maybe they will have sufficient funds to fight whom a feasible plan shall have been decided upon for eradication. I console myself by remembering our good work with the foot-and-mouth disease and our offeetual control of the masguite in the Canal Tone. But when I think of the cottonfields which have had this ansistance from bonefice at parasites but which would still be in a sorry way now, were it not for the dust sprays, I am told, it seems to me that we should aim at nothing short of oradication. If parasites can help with this, well and good, but our goal should be eradication. I am ashemed of suggested culture methods. We shall be compelled to adopt them. of course, when the borer reaches us. ...

ecters Reply to poretary Wallace's tatement

A Chicago dispatch to the press of to-day says: "No surprise was expressed by packing company officials here in connection with the filing by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace of a complaint against the proposed Armour and Morris merger. The complaint, packer ricials say, is to be regarded as a test case, although they declared violation of law has been or can be shown. ... F. Edson White, president farmour & Co., made the following statement February 26: 'The filing of complaint by Secretary Wallace against the purchase of the Morris proper-! does not come as a surprise. When we put the whole matter up to the wernment and the public we gained the impression that, while the Governint could see no legal objection, nevertheless the Secretary would make test case under the Packers and Stockyards Act. The great war was pririly responsible for the conditions which made it necessary to refinance ud reorganize our business. The Government controlled us during the war, compelled us to buy raw products at the highest prices in history, enperaged production to a point which filled our cellars and storerooms ith the costliest products we have ever owned, and then left us holding to sack by relinquishing control and dumping its war surplus in such a behion as to rain the market for the stocks we had been compelled to buy. he idea that our purchase of the assets of Morris & Co. is out of accord ith public policy, or that it would constitute an undue restraint of inter hate trade, or create a monopoly, is, in our opinion, without foundation. mretary Wallace's report submitted to Congress shows that the Morris ud Armour volumes combined would total only about 15 per cent of the busiwas in mest foods done by all packers and only about 25 per cent of the winess done by those packers who are under Federal inspection. There mists no legal or economic authority for holding that 15 per cent of the wal business gives domination or is detrimental to the public interest. ... There are in the meat industry approximately 1,300 packing concerns assure the competition which is conceived to be necessary to keep rices at a minimum. 10

w Ruling Asked on

The press to-day says: "The Supreme Court for min Futures Act the second time was asked February 26 to determine whether Congress in its effort to regulate future trading in grain and to provide for Governmental opervision, under which farmers' cooperative associations would be ad-Mitted to membership on grain exchanges, had exceeded its constitutional athority. ... Henry S. Robbins, counsel for the Chicago Board of Trade, challenging the Government's contentions, discussed the case with special Mierence to the Packers and Stockyards Act. He pointed out that interstate on trol in the packers' case was based largely upon the tangible dealing an actual article of commerce. The packers' case in no wise referred to lature trading, Mr. Robbins insisted, adding that it dealt with a flow of Aysical property, while the Grain Futures Act proposed to regulate all Miure trades in cereals when the Government admitted that only a part of such trades eventually would take the form of actual property. Solicitor meral Beck during his argument asserted that the Packers and Stockyards ut was so similar to the Grain Futures law that 'a distinction could not made beween the two. so far as their validity was concerned."

The Forld's Fork for Earch says in its editorial review of conditions: "Probably industrial history offers no parallel to conditions in the United States at the present time. This country presents a mighty oasis of prosperity in a much distracted world. That the farming regions are not participating in good times to the same degree as other sections to true; yet even here the status is improving. The tendency of prices is to rise; American farms are exporting more products than before the war, and their value has increased more than one hundred per cent. American agriculture is depressed only in comparison with the car boom — a boom that lasted for two years following the armistice. Practically all other American activities show the most estisfactory condition of health."

Maril Weevil

C.A. Whittle of the Southern Fortilizer Association soys in The American Fertilizer for February 24: "Lvery season brings forth some heralded 'new method' of boll weevil control. Along with them is a list of farmers' testimonials. The farmers are trustworthy people. They are sincere. It seems to them that there is no doubt the new method they have tried has been a success. In the catter of boll weevil control, there is greater danger in accepting formers' testimonials than there is in accepting their testimonials as to fertilizers, varieties of ectton and the like. The reason is that the boll weevil is erratic, its vageries are past comprehension. The writer could get testimonials of farmers in nearly every community to the effect that they did nothing to sombat the boll weevil and that they made as much cotton per sore as the farmer who made a hard fight on the insects by the most improved method. In a great many cases only a road or fence row will be the line of demarcation in the 'deadly parallel.' From a great deal of evidence that could be gathered from the non-fighters one could produce a strong argument against making any fight whatsoever against the boll weevil. Hard headed, succlusion and have held to it until the boll weevil same along and cleaned up the farmer who did not do anything. The trouble with many of the testimonials that are being persect in support of this or that new method is that they prove nothing because they have not proven that the weevil was present in ferce. Unless a farmer leaves a check plot clongside his treated plot, and determines in this way how much he has saved from the weevil, he has no proof. There are those who claim they have a secret something that will attract the meevil. In one instance they have patented a formula and have organized a company to exploit it. Thether this company own patent rights to a material that will attract weevils has not yet been tested by experiment stations and other egencies whose business it is to determine for the farmer exact facts and let them have the fusts without prejudice. fear or favor. It takes time to carry on reliable tests. To back up an untested boll weevil remedy, for reasons we have given, would be dangerous business. by untested remedies we mean untested by expert investigators of the Government and the states. ... It is well also to recognize that a method may be proven to be scientific and reliable by the most execting tests and still be impracticable. This might be true where the cost of applying the scientifically correct plan would be so great that one might use a less scientific method with greater not returns. What the fertilizer industry wants, of course, is to know the method that can be most generally applied and that will protect the cotton most profitably. If dependable experimenting is to be the basis of a decision then calclum ersenate dust holds undisputed eminence above all others, not only in the soid tests of experiments but it has proven adaptable to the average farmer. The everage farmer can use it. The proof is that the everage farmer has used it with success and the number who are using it with success is increasing very rapidly such year."

quoting the Milweukee Journal. Farming for February says: "The county agent is the keystone of better farming. He brings to the individual form the results of the study. research and experiment of state and national agricultural departments. Through him their work becomes of practical value. In Wisconsin the county agents have been behind such movements as the cradication of bovine tuberculosis. They have promoted cow testing associations which have done so much to raise the standard of dairy herds and have made the Tisconsin grade oow famous. They have directed the surveys. They have been leaders in the movement to put the marketing of farm products on a business basis. Anything that puts more brains into farming and helps to make more money out of it has been within the scope of the county agent. Agriculture in the United States is at a driais. Farming by rule of thumb will no longer do. New land on which the ruleing of a crop is a mere matter of plowing and harvesting is setting searce. The farmer can no longer look for his profit from the increase in value of his land. Unless his belance sheet shows a profit from operations he is only broke. Larksting has become a complex business. If agriculture is to progress, it must keep in step with conditions, and the county egent is the man who enables it to keep in step. County boards can not be blamed for looking for ways to reduce taxes, but orippling agriculture is not economy. Taxos spent for better farming are an investment whose dividends are more productive forms. and profitable farms make the tax burden ensier. will prove of great value to the peasant who was formerly undernourished, but who now, if he is industrious, can at least secure plenty of good, wholesome food for himbelf and family. This change in the living conditions of the peasant of Southeastern Europe has actually diminished the exportable surplus of wheat from the Danube district to the extent of 9 million bushels a year. Here it set for the fact that many European countries are now consuming less wheat than they did before the war, this reduction in the exportable wheat surplus from Southeastern Europe would be distinctly noticeable in this country at the prosent time."

The Montana Farmer for February 15 says in an editorial: "The greatest obstacle to profitable farming just now is the disheartening gap between the purchasing power of farm products and the relative parchasing power of the commodities which farmers must buy. The gap is ner-owing slowly but the readjustment is far too gradual for the peace of mind of the farmers and for the prosperity of the farming industry. ... The question in the minds of farmers and also very generally in the minds of business men who are feeling the farmers' lack of prosperity keenly, is whether anything can be done to give the economic law a hasky boot that will change its leisurely course into galak action. Many farmers and business men in the Borthwest, who have given thought to the matter, believe that stabilization of the price of wheat through governmental action would solve the problem at least in part and would bring to the farmers of the Forthwest immediately the relief that in the ordinary overse of procedure would come slowly during a considerable period of time. On the other band, a good many people -- realizing the difficulty of evolving a workable stabilization plan and the powerful opposition such a plan would meet in Congress -- place little faith in the practicability of such a scheme and believe that the farmer and business man must rely on the alow working out of the economic readjustment for relief from the situation. There is room for much argument on both sides of the question as to whether or not a stabilization plan would work out to the farmer's advantage in the long ran. As a temporary means of bridging the present gap and affording the wheat grower quick relief in the present emergency. a workable stabilization plan would no doubt be of bonefit to farmers in this section."

hrm Prices

American Agriculturist for February 24 says in an editorial: "Which sould you rather have; cheep labor and plenty of it and lower prices for your farm products, or high wages for labor, with correspondingly high prices for farm products? Those who remember the hard times of the 90's will have no hesitation in answering the question in favor of high priced times. We hear a great deal of loud talk about the too-high cost of labor. There is no doubt that some labor does cost too much and that some classes of labor are not producing; but there is also no doubt the working man who gets small wages is a mighty poor customer for farm products or for anything class."

The Entional Stockman and Farmer (Connaylvania edition) for February 17 says in an editorial: "Many of the ills of agriculture, and slee of basiness related to agrioulture, are asoribed to haphasard marketing. If by this is meant marketing without proper attention to grading. standardizing and other influences on the value of the product all will agree. But as generally used the term haphazard marketing refers eninly to irregularity in the quantition or numbers marketed. In this case there is comparatively little haphagard marketing beyond the degree in which all marketing is more or less of a herard. Products go to market or are withheld from market according to conditions which influence men either to sell or to held. That is natural marketing because it is in harmony with existing conditions, and it applies particularly to each products as grain and live stock. All of the intelligence of the country is at the disposal of everybody concerned in this marketing, and the collective judgment of all makes it what it is. ... Is any system of regulation of the flow of products to market likely to be more natural, more orderly or less hazardous than the regulation which normally results from the collective sense of all? A negative asswer must be given to these questions. The most disorderly marketing we have ever had was regulated marketing, regulated by a small group of men and not by the judgment and acts of all."

Relations of the Departments of War, Navy and Labor with the farmers were discussed by the Secretaries of those departments yesterday at the opening session of the American Agricultural Editors' Association at Washington. The importance of the work being conducted by these departments to the agricultural interests, despite the fact that they are seemingly disconnected, was emphasized. That farmers are as greatly interested in the national defense as any other class of citizens was the salient point of the address of Secretary of Mar Weeks. "The farmer, as well as any other citizen," he said, "should learn that the mational defense is no abstract theory evoked by a class foreign to his own interests, but a daty common to all of us."

The importance of a merchant marine to the farmer was emphasized by Secretary of the Bavy Denby. He said such a marine is necessary if the agriculturist hopes to be successful in the commercial competition which the nations of Europe will wage when conditions there have been restored

Enrollment of all aliens in the United States, in order that the Covernment can efficiently aid in Americanising them, was advocated by Secretary of Labor Davis, who announced he is now drafting a bill for presentation to Congress to provide for "selective immigration." He said all aliens, adults as well as children, should be compelled to be educated in English language schools. (Fress, Feb. 27.)

labber Conference

A movement was launched in Washington February 27 at a meeting of several hundred American rubber, automobile and accessory manufacturers, under the leadermip of Harvey S. Firestone, for a protest by manufacturers of rubber products in the United States, Great Britain and other countries to the ritish Government against restrictions on rubber exportation from the british colonies. The conference authorized Mr. Firestone, who acted as its chairman, to appoint a committee to cooperate with rubber makers in Great bitain and elsewhere in the protest and to take appropriate steps toward otaining the repeal of the restrictive laws. It was also resolved to coperate with the Departments of Agriculture and Commerce for the building of an American rubber production industry, with a view to making this country, which consumes the bulk of the world's supply of raw rubber, independent of the British control over the present world supply. A resolation indorsed the proposed legislation now before Congress calling for m appropriation of $500,000 for investigations and experimentations to establish new sources of supply of rubber, sisal, nitrates and other prodtots largely consumed in this country, and provided for the appointment of committee of five to cooperate with the Government in the event of the passage of such legislation. Mr. Firestone told those present that the conference had not been called to antagonize Great Britain, but to protest against the methods employed by a "small coterie of British shareholders in plantation interests" in forcing legislation which increased their profits at the expense of the American and other manufacturers. Secretary Wallace outlined the plans of the Department of Agriculture for ex-Primentation with rubber-producing plants in the United States, which, he predicted, would come. He thought there was as much prospect of develop. ing an American rubber industry as there was of the sugar beet industry hundred years ago. (Press. Feb. 28.)

Agriculture in Denmark

Frank G. Carpenter is the author of a lengthy artiole on agriculture in Denmark, in The Washington Star for February 25. In this he says: "We bow down to the labor union. Denmark does not bow down to the farmer, for the former is Denmark. His union is stronger than any labor organization of our country or England. There is no land in the world so built up on agriculture as this; and none in which the science and ethics of farming have so firm a foundation. The people worship three gods. ... They worship the eaw. They bow down also to the hen. ... The third and last god is the pig. a Yorkshire of the bacon variety; for it is his streak of lean and streak of fat, produced largely from the skimmed milk of the cow, that bring much of the money which supports the Danes. The chief business of Denmark is raising become na butter and oyes. These are the three money arops of the country and they provide the main support of the people. They bring in annually hundreds of militons of dollars, and from angland alone last year Jenmark received thirty-eight million dollars for bacon, forty million dollars for butter and thirty-five million dollars for eggs. The land. in fact, is one great factory devoted to turning out these three special products. The factory has more than a quarter of a million owners, each of whom runs a little branch independent of the others and all are joined together in four thousand cooperative exencies and other cooperative societies, the whole being better or anized than any system of chain stores in the United States. By this I mean that every fare is a plant that works according to rules made by the farmers themselves, buying and selling only in combination, with such common standards of production that all of the output is equally good, and, in short, operating as though the whole country were a single big farm."

conomic ationalism"

The Journal of Commerce for February 27 says in an editorial: "Practically all the nations of the world have been controlled by an economic nationalism that has rarely been equaled, and never surpassed, in all history. Take the tariffs of the past few years as an example. There never has been such a saturnalia of 'protection' as that with which the world is carsed to-day. In a good many cases export duties vie with tariffs as means by which artificial national advantage is sought. Central and Southeastern European States are particularly addicted to this form of national aggrendisement. Trade between the sundry small succession states is said to be all but impossible in many cases because of the attempts of each to gain advantage over the others by means of export duties. In the narrowest sense these measures are conclines successful, but as often they are not and, st. all events, the damage to wholesome and profitable international trade for outweiths any advantages of a technical sort that may flow from them. But not nearly the whole story has yet been told. There is Italy striving grimly to maintain its exclusive control of Flume and thus out her rival, Jugo-Blavia, off from access to the Adrietic. The British Empire is spending scod money in search of means of rendering herself 'independent' of this country for her supply of raw cotton. Our own Department of Commerce is asking for fands wherevith to discover a method or methods of freeing us from the 'domination' of the British in the matter of raw rabber, and sisal, and other commedities have been mentioned in the same connection. If every nation on the globe were to find some means of rendering itself 'independent' of every nation in respect to its raw materials, and finished goods, too, as to that matter, and in sc doing added heavily to their costs in terms of human labor, who would gain thereby?"

The Wall Street Journal for February 27 says in an editorial: "In the year 1922, 34,000 men and boys in New York State left their farm homes to seek weelth, fame and high ronts in the cities. in the same time about 8.500 men in this btate left the cities and went back to work on the farms for smaller wages and more food. Then one man goes from city to country to take the place of four who have left the farm for the factory, it can be seen how rapidly conditions are changing in the leatern States. Statistics compiled by the New York State Department of Ferms and Markets show that in four years the ferms of this State have lost 123,000 male workers to the cities and received back but 49.000. The same statistics show that the movement from ferms to cities last year was the largest of any of the four. In fact, the record of 1928 has been exceeded but once -- in 1917 -- when under the urge of wer, manafacturers in the labor merket were like excited bidders at an auction sale. ... The effect on farm production may not be noticed this year, but over a course of years it must make itself felt in lessened output and higher prices. Jorn, wheat and ment come from the Central host, but flow fork State a farms have much to do with feeding its people. ... Taking labor from the farms will work a gradual reduction in acreage, but a still greater one in production per core, seased by loss in soil improvement and leavened oultivation. The tendency away from the farms is not paculiar to New York alone, and all the people must pay in increased cost of living."

The loss lomosteed for February 22 says in an editorial on stockholders in redoral land banks: "I do not believe that to give the farminam farmers more voice in the management of these farm loan banks would destroy confidence or lessen efficiency, as some apponents of the plan have suggested. There is no reason why farmers can not supply capable directors for these boards. The most gencesoful farmors are trained business men. It could be borne in mind, also, that there is no requirement that they select farmers. They may, if they deem it wise and expedient, choose others to represent them. I do not, however, see any necessity for such action. Farmers are competent to elect directors for an organization created and established for their benefit. Instead of lessening the officiency of the system. I believe that more farmer

A Portland. Ore. . dispatch to the press of February 27 heat and Flour says: "Indications point to stronger demand by Chinese and Japanese bayers for Oregon and Washington wheat and flour. Australian and Canadian exporters are supplying most of the Oriental market. Canadian wheat exported from Voncouver. B. C., is about eight cents a bashel less than the American product, but efforts are under way to meet this price, local exporters say. Less than 3,000,000 bushels of wheat remain in werehousestributary to ortland for export or for flour manafacture."

Seorge Bishop says in the Oklahoma Farmer for February 25: "Out of the fact and condition that farmers have too much to sell comes the present agitation for a Covernment guarantee of a fair price to farmers for all products of which there is an export surplus. The theory is that in order to even things up, the Bational Sovernment should pey farmers, at their home market, a price for these export products that will enable the farmer to buy as much with a dollar coming from the sale of a bushel of wheat or a pound of sotton, as he could buy back in 1913. The Government then is to sell the export surplus for what it will bring on the world markets and absorb the loss, if any, through taxation on the people as a whole. The scheme probably is impracticable. But it is a beautiful theory, and undoubtedly is as fair as some of the laws which now provide 'business and industry' with a protection giving them profit at agriculture's expense."

leine Japan

Marketing of California raising in Japan has during 1922 reached the proportion of a $750,000 piece of morchandising. Will the Japanese become a Mation of relaineaters with an annual per capita consumption of raisins egasl to that of Americans and certain European peoples of some 10 pounds per person, or is reisin esting only a fad with the Japanese which will die out within a couple of years? The enesers to this question very radically. The import lists at Yokohama show that California raising are being brought into Japan by almost every trans- acific liner that arrives from San Francisco. Some of these shipments run into thousands of esses. Buring 1922, in fact, approximately 2,000 tons of raisins have been brought to Japan and placed on sale in fruit stores and confectionary shops all over the country, even in the small villages. This represents two and one-half times the consumption of raisins by Japanese for any previous calendar year, and the representative of the company doing the largest share of this business says that the import by his concern will again double during 1923. E.G. Lowry says in an article on "Starving Russia" in The Philadelphia Ledger for Pebruary 27: "The Americans in Russia have done and are doing their work under the shedow of a Government so inhumane that at this moment it is exporting food from starving people in order that it may receive in return suchinery and raw materials for the economic improvement of the survivors. A more cold-bloodedly cruel action is not recorded in the history of any nation. While this policy of experting foodstuff endures the Soviets become directly responsible for every Russian who starves to death. Before we stopped sending grain to Russia and when the Soviets started exporting we natually faced the prospect. when a ship arrived from America loaded with wheat from the Kiesissippi Valley, of finding the elevators and the warebouses at the Russian port filled with grain outsard bound. Hed this condition been allowed to come about, wheat healed 5.000 miles to feed starving Russians would have been transported over the identical routes and in the identical cars that had brought the Russian wheat from the fumine-stricken interior. That tragic jost was only averted when we stopped exporting arain."

- artment of 1. The Toman ditisen for February 24 says in an editorial: "A recognition long deserved of the valuable work of scientists in the service of the United States Government is made in a clight degree in a bill recently passed by the House of Representatives increasing the possible salaries of scientific workers in the Department of Agriculture. At present the maximum compensation is $4.500. The new measure permits salaries ap to $6,000. The Government has always been much slower in rewarding the service of man employed in its lines of research and conservation then in its military branches. Yet men in the departments of peace are usually contributing to the notual material wealth of the Mation, and life is often risked in these services, too. The bill mentioned gives only piecemeal relief. It is to be hoped that a comprehensive plan of reconstruction of Government departments and the reclassification of the civil service with adjactments of salaries, so long disenaged, will take place before many Congresses come and go. 100 TOTAL ELLE BY The Federal Government moves very slowly and this bill is a stop in the right direction."
  - 2. The Pacific Dairy Review for February 15 says: "On another page of this issue of the Review is a report of a meeting of representatives of the dairy breed record associations, held in Washington, which it is hoped every breeder of registered dairy cattle will read. In our estimation this meeting, which were onlied by the Chief of the United States Dairy Division, will mak a new milestone in the progress of the dairy entile breeding industry, provided our breeders absorb the spirit of the meeting."
